This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world’s books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that’s often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book’s long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

PREFACE.

THIS little work, now offered to the patronage of the public, derives its importance from the times and subjects of which it treats, rather than from its size or execution. The affairs of a township so small as East-Haven, cannot be expected to furnish materials for a narrative, or for a statistical account, so interesting as those of large towns, and especially those which were first colonized, and were concerned in the transactions of the first settlements of New-England. Yet it should be recollected, that some small towns, and the maritime towns in particular, were once constituent parts of the first colonies. This is true of East-Haven. It was a part of the ancient colony of New-Haven; and was connected with that colony and town, in all its domestic and foreign concerns, about 140 years. In this town also, the Quinipiack tribe of Indians had their planting ground, their forts, their place of burial, and their last place of residence. Here, too, the first Iron-works in Connecticut were established, and continued for about 25 years; and made Stoney River a place of business, for both New-Haven and Branford. These ancient affairs, with some events of a more recent date,—events, too, that grew out of the labours, trials, and perseverance of the first generations of the colony,—and the rise and progress of the Church and worship of God in the town, possess sufficient importance to engage the attention of, at least, the descendants of the ancient colonists, who bequeathed to their posterity the precious fruits of their toils and sufferings. An acquaintance also with the genealogy of their families, and with the progress of disease and death among them, cannot certainly be an object of indifference. These matters are, however, so local, that it is not expected they will excite much interest among those who have never had any connection with the town, or with its inhabitants. The patronage of this publication, therefore, will be chiefly derived from East-Haven families. But no suitable remuneration for the labour of the compiler, is expected from the small patronage which it will receive.

The Records of the village of East-Haven commence in the year 1680. But these are imperfect. The records of the Church, previous to the ordination of the Rev. Mr. Street in 1756, are lost: and the oldest monuments in the present cemetery, are dated 1712. These records and monuments were all read. Then the records of New-Haven Colony, of the Town and Probate offices of New-Haven, were examined; and also the monuments of the old cemetery of that town. Some materials were gleaned from the Town and Church records of Branford, North-Branford, Northford, North-Haven, and Wallingford. Several documents were drawn from the Secretary of State's office: and considerable information of a family nature, was derived from the aged people of this town. Yet, among so many names and dates, and so many subjects, errors and imperfections will doubtless be discovered: and some may find fault with the style and manner of execution. In reply, the compiler would only observe, that he has done the best he could to render the work accurate, amusing, and useful.

In respect to the dates, there is no difference observed between the old, or Julian style, and the new, or Gregorian style. The new style was adopted in the British dominions, in the year 1752. All the dates in this work, previous to the 14th of September of that year, are old style; and all the dates after the 14th of September, 1752, are new style. It was also customary to begin the year on the 25th of March. Between the 1st of January and the 25th of March, a part of the preceding year and a part of the new year were reckoned. Thus, Jan. 30, 1689, was written 1688—9, or 1688/9. But this mode of reckoning does not affect the dates as used in this work. The year is uniformly treated as beginning on the 1st day of January.

CHAPTER I.

New-Haven purchased and settled:—Then the tract on the East side of the River—The Cove—Stoney River and South-end, Foxon—and Dragon.

DURING the reign of James I. and Charles I. kings of England, the Puritans were subjected to a destructive oppression, and a furious persecution for conscience sake; and seeing no end to their sufferings, projected settlements in the wilderness of America, as a place of retreat for the Church of God, and where the salvation and freedom of themselves and of their posterity might be promoted and secured. Hence large companies left their native land and crossed the Atlantic. Among them were persons of wealth, learning, and distinguished piety and eminence.

On the 26th July, 1637, Rev. John Davenport, Mr. Samuel Eaton, Theophilus Eaton, Edward Hopkins, Thomas Gregson, and their company arrived at Boston. They were invited to continue there, or in that vicinity. This proposal they rejected, for they were determined to settle a new colony. Accordingly, in the fall of that year, Mr. Eaton and others explored the country along the sea-coast, west of Connecticut river, and finally fixed upon Quinipiack, as the place of their settlement. On the 30th March, 1638, the company sailed from Boston, and in about two weeks arrived safe at the place of their destination.

On the 18th April, the first Lord's day after their arrival, the people attended public worship under a large oak, and Mr. Davenport preached to them from Math. vi. 1. Soon after their arrival, they held a day of fasting and prayer; at the close of which, they solemnly entered into a plantation covenant, binding themselves, "that as in matters that concern the gathering and ordering of a Church, so also in all publick offices which concern civil order; as choice of Magistrates and officers, making and repealing laws, dividing allotments of inheritance, and all things of like nature, they would all of them, be ordered by the rules which the scripture hold forth to them." By this covenant they were regulated the first year.

On the 24th Nov. 1638, Theophilus Eaton, Esq. Mr. Davenport, and other English planters, made their first purchase of Momauguin, sachem of that part of the country, and his counsellors. The English promised to protect Momauguin and his Indians from their enemies, and that they should have sufficient planting ground between the harbor and Saybrook fort. This ground was located in East-Haven, from the Old Ferry point or Red-Rock, to the Solitary-Cove, on the west—on the north, the road from the ferry to Stoney-River—on the east, from the said road along the foot of Grave or Fort-Hill and the road that runs from Bridge-Swamp to the Cove. The purchasers also gave the sachem and his counsellors—"12 coats of English cloth, 12 alchemy spoons, 12 hatchets, 12 hoes, two dozen of knives, 12 porringers, and 4 cases of French knives and scissors."

This contract was signed by Momauguin and his council on the one part, and Theophilus Eaton and John Davenport on the other part. Thomas Stanton was interpreter. By the oppression of the Mohawks and Pequods, this tribe was then reduced to about 40 men.

On the 11th Dec. 1638, they purchased another large tract, which lay principally north of the former purchase. This was bought of Montowese, son of the great Sachem at Mattabesec, (now Middletown.) It was 10 miles long, north and south, and 13 miles in breadth. It extended 8 miles east of the river Quinipiack, and 5 miles west of it. For this tract they gave 13 coats, and allowed the Indians ground to plant, and liberty to hunt on it. These purchases "included all the lands within the ancient limits of the old towns of New-Haven, Branford, and Wallingford, and almost the whole contained within the present limits of those towns, and of the towns of East-Haven, Woodbridge, Cheshire, Hamden and North-Haven."

On the 4th June 1639, all the free planters of Quinipiack convened in a large barn of Mr. Newman’s, and formed their Division of Lands.

Constitution. Sixty-three names were subscribed to it on that day, and about fifty more were added soon after. Among the subscribers who settled in East-Haven, or were concerned in that settlement, were William Andrews, Jasper Crayne, Thomas Gregson, William Touttle or Tuttle, Garvis Boykim, John Potter, Matthew Moulthrop, Matthias Hitchcock, and Edward Patterson. To these were added Thomas Morris and John Thompson.

On the 7th March, 1644, the colony Constitution was revised and enlarged; and then were added the names of Matthew Rowe and John Tuthill: And in July following, Alling Ball, Edmund Tooly, Thomas Robinson, sen. and jun., William Holt, Thomas Barnes, and Edward Hitchcock: And in August, Peter Mallory and Nicholas Augur. On the 4th April, 1654, George Pardee, John Potter, jun.; and in May, Matthew Moulthrop, jun., were added.

Feb. 7, 1657, John Davenport, jun. Jonathan Tuthill, and John Thompson subscribed: May 1st, 1660, Nathaniel Boykim, and Thomas Tuttle.—Thomas Morris was admitted a free inhabitant 3d July, 1648; John Chedsey, 19th Feb. 1658; George Pardee, 16th June, 1662; and Robert Augur in 1674.

The town was named New-Haven in 1640. The first division of lands was made within the town plat, and that vicinity, for home lots. But several enterprising farmers turned their attention to the lands on the east side of the Quinnipiack, and began to settle there, when the second division was made.

In 1639, Thomas Gregson petitioned for his second division at Solitary-Cove, and on the 5th August, 1644, 133 acres were allotted to him at that place. There he placed his family—the first in East-Haven. The next year he was appointed agent for the colony to the Parliament in England, to obtain a patent. In 1647, Mr. Gregson, and Capt. Turner, and Mr. Lamberton, and five or six more of the principal inhabitants, sailed for England, in a ship of 150 tons; and were all lost.—Jane, the widow of Thomas Gregson, in 1677, gave a deed for 33 acres of the Cove farm to her daughter Phoebe, who had married REV. John Whiting, of Hartford, which he sold 18th July, 1678, to George Pardoe. And the remainder of the farm was sold to George Pardoe, jun. soon after it was divided among the heirs, in 1716.
List of Polls, and value of Estates.

In 1640, lots were laid out on the East side the river. The proportion for the second division was 20 acres of upland for 100l. estate, and 2½ acres for every poll in the family. And on 4th Nov. 1642, the town voted "that those who have their farms at the river called Stoney-River, shall have liberty to make a sluice in the river for their own convenience." Fifty acres of meadow on the east side, was granted to Rev. Mr. Samuel Eaton, 29th Aug. 1640. "Benjamin Linge and William Tuttle are allowed to have their meadow when Mr. Eaton hath his first 50 acres, viz. in the fresh Meadow towards Totokett, and Mr. Crayne is to have his also there."—Jasper Crayne had his lot and house on the east side of the green; William Tuttle on the south side of the fresh meadows. I cannot ascertain the spot where Benjamin Linge built. These were men of wealth, and much employed in public affairs.

Jasper Crayne sold his farm of 16 acres, to Matthew Moulthrop, 7th Sept. 1652, and removed to Totokett; and from thence his son Jasper removed to Newark, 1667. William Tuttle had five sons, all of whom sold their patrimony and removed, except Joseph; some of whose descendants still remain in the town. Benjamin Linge died without children, and Col. Dixwell, one of King Charles' judges, married his widow.

In 1649, "It was ordered that Mr. Davenport, pastor of the Church, shall have his meadow, and the upland for his second division, both together, on the East side of the East-River, where himself shall choose, with all the conveniency the place can afford for a farme, together with the natural bounds of the place, whether by creeks or otherwise." He accordingly laid out a tract of land of about a mile square, and containing about 600 acres, above Dragon.

In 1650, Alling Ball became his farmer, and was exempted from militia service, while he continued in Mr. Davenport's employment.

The following list of polls and estates, by which the first division was regulated, will show the relative wealth of some of those who first had their farms in this town:

In 1643, pieces of eight were reckoned at five shillings and eight pence. Wampum, in 1640, was fixed at six for a penny.

Totokett being settled about this time, in 1649, a difficulty arose concerning the boundary between the two towns,* which was committed to an arbitration; but it appears that the business was still unfinished in 1659.

In 1644, a bridge was built over Stony-river on the road to Totokett, by William Andrews, for which he charged the town of New-Haven £3. 8. 9.

The ferry at Red-Rock, had been kept by Francis Brown; but in 1650, George Pardee took it, and he was afterwards allowed to build a house there at his own expense. And in 1670 the ferry farm was granted to him, which was left by him to his son George, and continues still in the possession of his descendants. The rates of ferriage established in 1671, were as follows: For a man and horse, sixpence. If the horse swam over, three pence. Afterwards it was reduced to fourpence,—and a footman, twopence.

In 1651, William Tuttle, and Benjamin Linge, and Matthew Moulthrop, obtained 14 acres of the fresh meadow. They and the Governor had 20 acres of it. John Potter and Ellis Mew, also obtained 20 acres of it. In 1662, John Potter, obtained a piece of land upon which to set his

* Sept. 5, 1640. The General Court, at New-Haven, made a grant of Totokett to Mr. Samuel Eaton, brother of Governor Eaton, upon the condition of his procuring a number of his friends from England, to make a settlement in that tract of country. Mr. Eaton failed in fulfilling the conditions.—About three years after, the subject was acted upon thus: "Totokett, a place fit for a small plantation, betwixt New-Haven and Guildford, and purchased from the Indians; was granted to Mr. Swayne and some others in Wethersfield, they repaying the charges, which are betwixt £12 and 13, and joining in one jurisdiction with New-Haven and the forenamed plantations, upon the same fundamental agreement settled in Oct. 1643, which they duly considering accepted."

The settlement began in 1644. [N. Haven records.]
blacksmith shop. About the same time, John Tuttle, jun., sold to him his house and home lot—it was the same on which Josiah Bradley now lives. And about the same time William Luddington died, and his widow bought of John Tuttle, jun., land at Stoney-river, which was a part of his patrimony.

John Cooper came to Stoney-river about the time of the building of the Iron works, of which he appears to have been the agent and overseer.

In 1662, Samuel Heminway appeared and obtained land for a home lot, which was not far from the furnace. Thomas Barnes bought of John Harriman south of Muddy-river, 1662—and in 1664, petitioned the town for a piece of land at the Iron works, for Ralph Russel, which, by the advice of the townsmen was granted. That lot is now occupied by Thomas Barnes. John Russel, his brother, come here about the same time, but I cannot ascertain the spot he located. William Fowler owned land on the east side, and in 1676 he confirmed by deed to John Austin, land, that he had previously bought of widow Jones. Anna, widow of William Andrews, sold to Matthew Moulthrop, sen., a piece of land at Fowler's Cove, 1667. This name, and that of Fowler's Creek, were both derived from William Fowler, who owned land or meadow adjacent to both places.

The purchase and settlement of the great neck, or Southend, appears next in order.

William Andrews, John Cooper, Sgt. Richard Berkley, Isaac Whitehead, and Nathaniel Merriman, petitioned for land beyond Solitary-Cove, in 1645, but their petition was not granted. In 1649, William Andrews alone applied for the same tract, but failed. In 1651, Richard Berkley renewed the application for himself. But the town refused to grant him the land, because other men had also applied for it.

On the 3d Dec. 1651, the application was again renewed, and it was finally "argued and ordered that; William Andrews, Richard Berkley, Matthias Hitchcock, Edward Patterson, and Edward Hitchcock, shall have the neck of land by the sea-side, beyond the Cove, and all the meadows belonging to it below the Island with a rock upon it. They are to have the neck entire to themselves by paying to the Town one penny an acre for 500 acres, for every rate; and for their meadows as other men do. They are to settle and dwell upon it at spring next, and improve it by way of farming for getting corn, and breeding of Cattle, and not to dispose of it by letting or selling, without the Town's consent. And if they, or any of them should remove out of the plantation within five years, they are to leave the lands to the Town, (if they will accept it) they paying for improvements as it is then worth, being appraised by indifferent men. And if their cattle do damage by eating the meadows the farmers now have at Stoney River, it is agreed, (Mr. Linge and Mr. Tuttle being present) that a fence shall be made to secure it from their cattle, which is to be made and maintained betwixt them; that is, the farmers on the neck half, and the farmers at Stoney River (who are concerned in it) the other half.

"Further the farmers upon the neck promise (that seeing they have the neck entire to themselves) if any of their cattle get out of the pasture without the neck, they will make a fence to keep them in."

The taxes laid upon this land seem to have constituted a kind of rent, and being considered by the tenants as very burdensome, they petitioned for relief, but could obtain no abatement.

William Andrews sold his share in the neck to James Denison and John Asbill, 1663. John Asbill sold his part to J. Denison, 1689. Thomas Smith married the daughter and only child of Edward Patterson; and so became possessor of his share. In 1662, Richard Berkley sold his share to Thomas Harrison; and the same year, Harrison sold his share at South-end and land at Muddy river, to John Thompson. The Hitchcock family sold their part, and all died or removed from East-Haven.

The South-end men still feeling uncomfortable under their one-penny tax; on the 3d May 1689, Thomas Smith, James Denison, Eliakim Hitchcock and John Thompson, proposed to the town a final payment, instead of the yearly rent for their lands, which was referred to the towns-men: And on the 4th November, "In pursuance of the town order made in May last, the towns-men having treated with the five South-end men about the neck of land, for which they were to pay £25 in money, declared that the said men are willing to pay £15 in money to the town, to clear off the incumbrance, and the yearly payment aforesaid; the town making over the said neck of land by their grant, or deed in writing to them the said five men, their heirs and assigns forever according to law, and with mention of full boundary thereon.”

“The town after some debate voted their acceptance of said £15 in money tendered by the said South-end men, to be by them, or their order, paid to Mr. Baker of Boston, towards payment for the bell bought of said Baker, some time in May next. And they ordered that any two of the townsmen are appointed to sign and seal a deed or deeds to the South-end men, for settlement of right and title to them accordingly.”

Tradition states, that this bell is the same now used in the Court House in New-Haven.

According to this agreement and vote of the town, on the 7th Dec. 1689, Moses Mansfield and Abraham Dickerman, two of the townsmen of New-Haven, gave a deed, for the consideration of £15 in money, to John Thompson, Thomas Smith, James Denison, Eliakim Hitchcock, and Nathaniel Hitchcock—“bounded on the south and south-west by the sea, and on the east with Stoney river, from the mouth of it to a stake by the side of the said river, with a heap of stones at it. And from thence to a white oak, marked with N. H. and stones at the root. And thence Westerly bounded by the meadows of John Russel, widow Mew, William Ludington, John Austin, Matthew Moulthrop, and John Potter, into the middle of Huckleberry swampe, and so unto Fowler’s meadow westerly, and so along by the meadows of Hartfordshire suburbs quarter, and so unto the east end of a pond by the beach called the black pond.”—N. H. Rec.

On the 16th March, 1671, Thomas Morris, a shipbuilder, bought the little neck. Having Gregson’s farm on the north and the meadows along Fowler’s creek on the east. His design was to carry on ship building, the timber there being very suitable for that purpose. But two years afterwards death put an end to all his purposes.

The lots about Dragon point, between the Davenport and Ferry farms, were laid out, but lay dormant several years. The transaction relative to that subject stands thus on record:

13th Feb. 1670. “The town by vote granted that those that have land on the east side about Dragon point shall have liberty to lay their lots together, and to begin at which end they please.” And the townsmen are hereby appointed to settle it with them, both in respect to convenient highways, and also how far their lots shall run in length from the river.” In 1703 these lots were occupied.

Next to the Brown farm, Matthew Rowe, jun. had his farm. Alling Ball obtained a farm north of the Davenport farm. Eleazar Morris, jun. settled on the hill east of the Ball farm. John Austin appears on record in 1673; and six years after obtained a piece of land overflowed by the Forge pond. He built on the north side of the road, west of the Green. In 1683 Isaac Bradley came into the village from Branford, and bought a building lot next to the river, of sergt. John Potter, and north of his house. He was a carpenter. In 1681 deacon John Chedsey, a tanner and shoemaker, settled on the north side of the Green, on a three square lot of about three acres, between John Potter and John Austin. And afterwards ten acres were granted him by the village, on the west side of the fresh meadows, which ever since has been known by the name of Chedsey’s field, and Chedsey’s hill. In March 1683 he “proposed to the village to have a third division of land among us equal to ten heads and £100 estate, which he doth apprehend to be 60 acres; and for the future he will be engaged to pay towards the expenses of the village after the rate of £200 rateable estate, until his estate shall amount to £200, and then to rise as his estate shall rise.”

In 1683 the village made a third division of land; and passed the following order, viz.: “Thomas Pinion, Robert Dawson, William Roberts, Joseph Abbot, and James Tailor, on their motion to the village, are to have no third division with the rest of the inhabitants; but shall have their land next to that land we obtained from Branford, as follows. Thomas Pinion, Robert Dawson and William Roberts, being married men, shall have 30 acres each man. And Joseph Abbott and James Tailor shall have 20 acres each man, provided each of the aforesaid five men do build upon the said land a tenantable house within three years of the present date.”

The lots granted by the village to the five men above-mentioned, were confirmed by a town vote of New-Haven. The lots lay on Foxon’s farms, north and south, across the river, and the road as it now runs. That plain was called Foxon’s farms from the circumstance of its being the residence of an Indian sagamore, named Foxon. It is on record of the date of 1644. "The people of Branford complained that the Indians set traps in the cattle's paths; and a Marshall was sent from New-Haven to warn Uncas, or his brother, or Foxon, to come and speak to the Governor about it." In 1658 the inhabitants of the village petitioned the town, "that a line might be run from the rear corner of Mr. Davenport's farm towards the town to Foxon's Weekswam, and so Stoney river be their bounds on the east;" from which it appears that Foxon's residence was on the plain, not far from the river. From an inspection of a number of other documents, I find that Foxon's farms was on the plain between the house of Jared Grannis and Capt. Chedsey, and the river and the swamps at the foot of the hill north and west.

Thomas Goodsell, from Branford, was admitted an inhabitant of New-Haven in April, 1692, and soon after built the house now occupied by the widow and son of Azariah Bradley; and is the oldest house in East-Haven. Edmund Tooley built on the lot south of sergt. John Potter. Edward Vickar lived east of the furnace dam. William Luddington, jun. lived on the southeast corner of the road opposite the pumpkin lot, and the place was afterwards owned by Gideon Potter and by Isaac Mallory. Samuel Thompson built on the corner lot west of the present meeting-house; and it is probable that his father, John Thompson, lived there before him. Thomas Robinson's house was opposite the present meeting house, on the south side of the road. Samuel Russel lived on the lot now owned by Thomas Barnes. Capt. John Russel built west of Mullen hill. The lot of Matthew Moulthrop, the third, is now in the possession of the Shepard family. John Luddington was located in Bridge swamp, and his son James succeeded him, and he sold to Jedediah Andrews. Thomas Smith, jun. built near where John Forbes now lives, and his son Thomas built between him and Capt. John Russel's.

Concerning the Boundaries of the Town.

WE shall now proceed to take a view of the boundaries of the town. The dividing line between New-Haven and Branford had not been definitely ascertained and fixed at the time New-Haven sold Totokett; which left much room for uneasiness and altercation. It is a prevailing tradition, and supported too by collateral records, that the original line ran along the east side of Branford hills. And it appears from the petition of the village to New-Haven, and the grant of New-Haven to the village in 1679, and the subsequent grant by Branford, of the half mile, to the village; that Branford actually held in possession more land, than was contained in the original purchase from New-Haven in 1644, and that was not paid for. Branford claimed as far as the Furnace pond. So early as 1649 a difficulty on this subject appeared, which was submitted to arbitration, but without effect. In 1656 New-Haven made a grant of the Furnace farm to the Iron company, and 12 acres to the collier; both within the line claimed by Branford, though Branford was treated as having some interest in the Iron works. About the year 1660 Branford proposed to New-Haven to have the line run between them. And after a long delay the business was acted upon in the following manner, as appears from the Colony records, Hartford, 14th May, 1674.

"This Court ordereth that the agreement between New-Haven and Milford, Branford and Wallingford, about their bounds, be recorded with the records of the Court, and is as followeth."

"Whereas there has been a difference between the inhabitants of New-Haven and the inhabitants of Branford about the dividing bounds between each plantation, and the inhabitants of New-Haven aforesaid having chosen and empowered James Bishop, jun. Thomas Munson, William Andrews, John Mosee, and John Cooper, senr. on their part, and the inhabitants of Branford aforesaid having chosen and empowered Mr. John Wilford, Thomas Blackley, Michael Tayntor, Thomas Harrison and Samuel Ward on their part, to issue the sayd difference in reference to the sayd bounds, the sayd persons abovenamed (excepting John Cooper, in whose roome Mr. William Tuttle was desired by the authority of New-Haven) being met together this fifth day of October 1669, and a full debate and consideration of the case for the preserving of love and peace and the preventing of trouble for the future between them that have hitherto been loving neighbours, have condescended so far each to other as to agree about the premises as followeth, viz. That from the river formerly called in an agreement Tapamshashack (with the exception of meadows therein expressed) the great pond at the head of the Furnace shall be the bounds so far as it goes; and from the head of the said pond that a straight line be drawn to the east end of a Hassukque meadow out of which a brooke called Hercules brooke runnes into muddye river, and from the east end of the sayd meadowe to runn a north lyne, with the just variation according to the country unto the end of the = bounds of Branford aforesayd, that is, ten miles from the sea according to the order of the General Assembly. In another instrument of a later date the bounds are thus described.

"Whereas the General Court of Connecticut Colony, have formerly granted unto proprietors, inhabitants of the town of New-Haven in the sayd Colony, all those lands both meadows and uplands with all their appurtenances within these abutments following, viz. on the sea or sound; on the south, from the mouth of Oyster river, to the mouth of Scotch Cap, or Stoney River, untill it come to the brooke called Tapponshaske (only in that line is not included the meadow that is laid out to New-Haven proprietors, on the east side the sayd river according to former agreement with Branford) and so the sayd brooke is the bounds to the Furnace dam, and thence the great pond to the head of it, and thence a line eastward half a mile to a white oak, marked with H. T. B. and stones laid at the foot of it."

Colony Records, entered 7th Jan. 1685.

Branford bounds are mentioned in another instrument, of a later date, after the half mile was set off. "Upon the sea on the south, and on the New-Haven bounds on the west, at Scotch Cap, or Stoney River, until it comes to the brooke Tappanshashick, (only in that line is not included the meadow, which is laid out to proprietors on the east side of the sayd River, and hath been agreed upon,) and that sayd brooke is the bounds to the Furnace dam, and thence the great pond to the head of it, and thence a line eastward half a mile to a station, which is a white oak, marked H. T. B."

The east line of the half mile, had not yet been run and marked. The village, therefore, moved the matter to Branford, and having agreed, their Committees met and came to the following result:

"We the subscribers being appointed to measure off the half mile agreed upon with New-Haven, as by record may appear, to the inhabitants of East-Haven village, in pursuance thereof on the 14th April, 1713, then meeting with East-Haven Gentlemen at the head of the Furnace pond, and after full debate and consideration of the premises, we began at the first bound mark at the head of sayd pond, near the middle of sayd pond, and run a line eastwardly, square from the old line, which was the dividing line between New-Haven and Branford, an 160 rods to a heap of stones, on the east side of a small hill, at the upper end of Brusby plane; thence a line northward, according to agreement, to a Walnut Tree marked with B B, and stones at the root, which Tree is 160 rods eastward from the Antient bounds Tree; near Hercules' meadow, and from the aforesaid Walnut Tree, still northward according to agreement, to the head of the bounds to a White Oak Tree, with letters on it and stones at the root, which is 160 rods eastward from the Antient corner at the head of the bounds between New-Haven and Branford. It is agreed, that the above-mentioned bounds shall stand and abide to be the bounds between Branford and East-Haven. As witness our hands.

The 29th Dec. 1679, the village, among other things, petitioned New-Haven for their parish or village bounds to extend as far north as Muddy River; in answer to which they say—"That their bounds shall be the north side of Alling Ball's Farme, by a line from the River as his line runs, untill it meets with Branford line, above Foxon's."
Thus the bounds of the town were all fixed. But after several families on the half mile were set off to North-Haven Society, the line in that quarter was changed. In 1716, the General Court granted the northern parish in New-Haven, to be a distinct Eclesiastical Society. And in May 1718, the Assembly gave them permission to enter into a church state. A number of East-Haven families living on the half mile, were so far from public worship that they requested the privilege of uniting with North-Haven Society, which was granted as follows:

"New-Haven, Oct. 1737—In the memorial of Samuel Jacobs, Daniel Finch, Benjamin Barns, Isaac Blakeslee, Nathaniel Hitchcock, William Rogers, Abel Smith, Joseph Moulthrop, and Caleb Hitchcock, inhabitants in New-Haven, shewing this Assembly that they are settled within the bounds Parish of East-Haven, on a certain tract of land, called of the the half mile, in the Northeast corner of said Society and remote from the publick worship of God in said Parish, praying this Assembly to discharge them from the said Society, and annex them to the North Society in said Town, so as to include the said memorialists, and no other inhabitants; bounding so far South, as to include Benjamin Barnes' Farm, and so Eastward to the east part of said half mile between Mr. Mather's and Mr. Abraham Heminway's land, and so north to Wallingford Town line, between Branford and said half mile, including all the lands east of the said North Society, within said bounds."—[Colony Records.]

When North-Haven became a town in 1786, that society line became, of course, the line between the two towns, across the half mile; and all the half mile above that line was taken from the town of East-Haven and annexed to the town of North-Haven. And this alteration of the line on the half mile, accounts for the crookedness of the north line of this town. The whole line between the two towns was surveyed 11th March, 1789:

"Beginning at a heap of stones at Branford line, northeast of the house of Abner Thorpe; thence 4 degrees north 78 rods to the middle of the high way or thereabouts to a heap of stones;—thence in the high way 47 rods south 5 degrees west to a heap of stones; thence in the line of Jonathan Barnes' farm west 8 degrees north 80 rods, to the old New-Haven line to a heap of stones; thence 4½ degrees west of south, 80 rods;—thence south 2½ degrees west, 80 rods, to a heap of stones; thence south 3 degrees west 80 rods to a heap of stones; thence in the same line 80 rods more to a large white oak tree marked; thence west 11 degrees south 80 rods; still in the same course 80 rods more; thence west 13 degrees south 80 rods; thence west 14 degrees south 80 rods; thence west 12 degrees south 70 rods, to the bend in the Ball farm, and from said bend 10 rods to another monument; thence west 6 degrees and 8 minutes south to the East River; erecting monuments at the distance of every 80 rods, with marked stones at each monument from the white oak Tree to the River; the number of monuments or 80 rods distance is 12, and 49 rods. 11th March, 1789."

CHAPTER III.

Concerning the Iron Works and Mills.

The transactions relative to the Iron Works are contained in sundry resolutions and orders. This was, probably, the first establishment of the kind within the present bounds of the state. This business was introduced in the following manner:

"General Court, N. H. 12th Nov. 1655.

"The Towne was acquainted that there is a purpose, that an Iron Worke shall be set up beyond the farmes at Stoney River, which is considered will be for a publique good; and Mr. Goodyear declared that Mr. Winstone and himself did intend to carry it on; only he desired now to know what the Town desired in it; much debate was about it; but no man engaged in it at present; but divers spoke, that they would give some worke towards making the Dam, whose names and number of days worke were taken, which amounted to about 140 days: so it issued for that time."

"29th Nov. 1655.—The Governor informed the Towne that this meeting was called to consider something further a-about the Iron Wurke, sundry who engaged to worke, last Court, have not yet performed, tho' all others have; and it was now concluded that those that are now behinde, should be called upon to perform what they promised.—It was also now desired that men would declare, who will engage in the worke, and what estate they will put in. But few speaking to it, it was desired that those who are willing would meet at the Governor's this afternoon at 2 o'clock, to declare themselves therein, and it was now propounded whether the Towne will give up their right in the place, and what accommodation is necessary for the best conveniency of the said Iron Wurke; in this case all the Towne voted to give a full libertie for the Iron Workes to go on, and also for wood, water, ironplace, oares, shells for lime, or what else is necessary for that worke, upon the Towne lands upon that side of the great river, called the East River; provided, that no man's proprietie, laid out, or to be laid out, be entered upon, nor no planter prohibited, from cutting wood, or other conveniency upon the said common, in an orderly way; and that Branford doe make the like grant, according to their proportion they have in the worke, that future questions about this thing may be prevented.

"19th May, 1656. Upon motion of Mr. Goodyear and John Cooper in behalf of the Collier that comes to burn coal for the Iron workes; he had 12 acres of land granted him as his own, if the Iron workes go on, and he stay three years in the worke. Provided that all minerals there be reserved, and that he attend all orders of the Towne for the present, and in disposing of said lands hereafter, if it shall so fall out, to have it. The place propounded for is a piece of land lying betwixt the Great Pond, and the Beaver Meadows, a 100 or 2 acres, about 2 miles from the Iron worke. Against which grant or place none objected, so as to hinder the same."

This is now called the Farm. It was first in the possession of Theophilus Eaton the Governor. It was given to his daughter Mary, who married Valentine Hill, merchant, Dover—Piisquataqua. He sold it to Nathaniel Micklethwaite, merchant, London, 2 Nov. 1660—for £280 sterling, or $1022 22. He sold it to Thomas Clark of Boston for £100 lawful money, 28th Feb. 1665.—And in the Township of New-Haven.—The farm contained 300 acres of upland and 60 acres of meadow.

"14th Sept. 1657. The Governor informed the Court that Mr. Winthrop has let out his part of the Iron works to two men in Boston, Capt. Clarke and Mr. Payne, as they have agreed.”

This plan met with a general disapprobation. Debating followed. It was contended, that as this establishment was made for the purpose of trade; there was danger of the entire alienation of the trade and the property. And there would also be a collection of disorderly persons, which would corrupt the morals of the neighborhood, and cause great trouble in the Town. The subject was referred to the Court, and the Townsman John Cooper to consider of it, upon what terms to let out the works, and whether they should cut wood upon our ground.”

That reference reported thus:

“An agreement made by the Committee appointed to consider about the Iron works, was read to the Towne and by vote confirmed and ordered to be entered.”

“At the Governor’s house, 1 Dec. 1657.”

“1. It is agreed that the Iron Works propounded to and allowed by this Towne, and to which they granted several privileges, was, and is only for this Furnace now made in the place intended, and expressed, as appeareth by the records, with a Forge, or two, if necessary for the Iron which this furnace produceth, which are to be improved by the Townes jointly within the limits allowed by this Court.

“2. This Iron worke and all the privileges thereunto belonging, were intended and granted for the good of New-Haven and Branford, for bringing and setting up trade there, which in whole or in a great measure they are like to be deprived of, if any part of it be alienated either to strangers, or others out of their jurisdiction. They, therefore, think it not safe, that any part of it be sold, or leased out, without particular and express law and licence from the Towne, or Jury, or a Committee, as is appointed for house lots or lands.

“3. That our neighbors and friends of Branford provide and supply their part of wood, which is 3-8th parts, with other things of a like nature, from the land within their own limits, and that New-Haven do the like for their 5-8th parts.

“4. That all servants, women and others employed in any respect about the Iron works, shall attend and be subject to all orders and laws already made, or which shall be made and published by this towne, or jurisdiction, as other men.
"5. That the grant made by the Iron works be forthwith delivered to the Secretary here, that it may be read and considered; as the grant made by New-Haven shall be to them; that the two plantations may receive and bear their due proportion in profits and charges, as was at first provided for."

How far these resolutions were carried into effect does not appear. But about eight years afterwards, Benjamin Linge prosecuted John Cooper, agent of the Iron works, for the damage he had sustained from the water of the dam. And the people employed there being many of them corrupt foreigners and strangers, were so immoral and vicious as to require the frequent interposition of the civil authority.

"The General Court, therefore, ordered that complaint should be made to Capt. Clark about the disorderly persons that came to the Iron works. And also ordered that the master, clerk, or overseer, and other officers, shall not admit any without a certificate from persons of known reputation, under the penalty of 40 shillings for every offence; and if any come or tarry there without such recommendation and permission, shall be liable to the penalty of forty shillings."

And as a further check to these increasing evils, Matthew Moulthrop, sen. was appointed conservator of the morals of the people about the Iron works.

Of so much consequence was this establishment; that after the union of New-Haven with Connecticut, a special was made to grant the people employed in the work, to free them from taxes for 7 years, as appears from the following order.

"13th May, 1669, Upon the petition of Mr. William Andrews, on behalf of Capt. Thomas Clark, master of the Iron works of New-Haven, for encouragement of the said worke, for the supply of the country with good Iron, and well wrought according to art, this Court do confirm a grant formerly made by New-Haven: That the said persons and estates constantly or only employed in the said work, shall be and are hereby exempt from paying country rates for 7 years next ensuing."—[Conn. Col. Rec.]

At this period, and until the business was relinquished, Thomas Clark of Boston appears to have been the principal owner. Business was carried on here both from New-Haven and Branford. It continued until about 1679 or '80. Why the business was relinquished cannot now be satisfactorily ascertained. The furnace was supplied with bog ore from North-Haven. It was chiefly carted, but sometimes brought from bog-mine wharf by water, round to the point below the furnace; and from that circumstance the point to this day is called Bogmine. There was a great mortality in the village in the year 1679, when Ralph Russell, and some other principal workmen died, which may have obstructed the operation; and, probably, the expense was too great to realize sufficient profits. It is a tradition in the Russell family, that the death of the principal workmen produced this change.

Jasper Crane and John Cooper were overseers and agents. Richard Post was founder; and John Russell was potter in the furnace.

On the 19th August, 1680, Thomas Clark sold to sergt. John Potter, "All that farm lying and being within the township of New-Haven, and near and adjoining to a brook called by the name of Stoney brook, which Thomas Clarke bought of Nathaniel Micklethwaite of the city of London; merchant, containeth by estimation 300 acres of upland, be it more or less, and 3 score acres of meadow, be it more or less, adjoining thereto, excepting always all the uplands that hath been formerly sold from the said farme or Iron workes, reserving only all the Iron worke plates of Iron, and the moveables to himself, that are upon the premises." John Potter was to pay £40 per annum for 21 years, in wheat, pork and peas.

The farm soon passed into the hands of William Rosewell, whose only daughter and heir married Gurdon Saltonstall, afterwards the Governor of Connecticut.

Sergt. John Potter did not resume the Iron business, as was contemplated when he bought the farm. But in the year 1692, he and Thomas Pinion petitioned New-Haven for liberty to build a Bloomary on the first spring, or brook towards Foxon. In April, "some of the townsmen having viewed the brooke that runs into Stoney river at the place, or thereabouts, which was moved for by John Potter, formerly, to set up a Bloomary; the town by vote approved of his design of a Bloomary; and for his encouragement allow him the use of said brooke, and 20 acres of land, not exceeding 30, near the first spring, the west side of Stoney river; and grant him the liberty of what Iron mines there are within the town bounds, and the use of what wood he needs in the commons for the work, if it proves effectual. And the aforesaid land is to be laid out and bounded to him, by the surveyor, and one or two of the Townsmen. Always preserving the necessary highways if there be any."—[N. H. Rec.]

This Bloomary was established, but I cannot find how long it was in operation.

The site of the Furnace was sequestered for a grist-mill, as appears from the following curious document on East-Haven records:

"Articles of agreement made between the Inhabitants of Stoney River of the one party, and Samuel Heminway of the other party, 2 July, 1681, is as followeth, concerning setting up of a Grist-Mill at the Furnace Dam.

1. "The said Village doth for his encouragement give the Furnace Dam, with the use of the water dammed therewith, and do promise to defend the said Heminway in the possession thereof, (so far as in their power) without let or molestation from any, either New-Haven or Branford, or any other; reserving liberty for John Potter to have a convenient place for water from the same pond, to set up and manage a Bloomary Furnace of Iron, if the said Potter shall at any time, hereafter, see cause to enter upon such a design."

2. "The said Village doth give to the said Heminway the land that lies next to his house between Stoney River and the Farame, to the quantity of an acre or two, if it may be spared from the highways, as they shall see good to set out to him, and 16 or 17 acres of land elsewhere, that may be convenient for the said Heminway.

3. "The said Village do free the said Grist Mill from paying taxes to the said Village or Town.

4. "The Inhabitants of the said Village do engage to bring the corn that they would have ground into meal, to the said Mill.

5. "The said Inhabitants do engage to perform the whole work of what is necessary for the setting down said Mill, and to repair it, that the Dam may be secure from breaches at the setting down said Mill. But the said Heminway is to secure it at his own charges for the future, when some extraordinary, or unexpected accident shall happen to it.

6. "The said Inhabitants of the said Village do engage to assist him to raise the Mill Stones, and to get them to the said Mill, and to give the said Samuel Heminway liberty to use what timber and stones may be needful for building and repairing the said Mill, as shall be most convenient for him in that business, Grant of Mill Privilege.

"And in consideration of the premises, the said Samuel Heminway doth engage as followeth:

1. "That the said Heminway will, before the next winter, in November next ensuing, set up a sufficient Grist Mill, at the above place, and keep the said mill in good repair, fit to make good and sufficient meal of corn, that is dry and fit for grinding.

2. "That he the said Heminway will set up a house over the Mill sufficient to secure the inhabitants' corn from damage by the neighbours hogs, or other creatures, that might otherwise devour it—within his compass.

3. "That the said Heminway or somebody for him, shall attend at the said Mill, one day in a fortnight, if there be need, to grind for the inhabitants their corn. And shall spend more time, and give attendance on the same, if need be, that is, till he hath ground all that is brought to be ground the said day.

4. "That the said Heminway will take no more toll for the grinding our corn into meal than what the law allows.

5. "That he will either keep this mill himself, or if he shall let it to any other, it shall be to such an one as the Inhabitants of the Village shall approve of.

6. "The said land, the said Village do give to the said Heminway, to be for the use of said Mill, and so continue, except the 16 or 20 acres given him.

"The first article is thus to be so understood that the said Heminway doth engage to bear his share with the other Inhabitants of the said Village in any damage that may fall by the Dam or Stream, or by any trouble for the same, by New-Haven or Branford or any other. And as for the land about the house, mentioned in this agreement, it be understood, that the said Heminway is to have what can be spared there from highways and across on the other side of the pond.

"The aforesaid articles of agreement concerning the Mill, made between the said Samuel Heminway and the Inhabitants of said Village, 2d July, 1681, is confirmed by Vote to be their doings."—[E. H. Rec.]

The grant of 16 or 17 acres, the town of New-Haven refused to ratify.

About 25 years after this transaction, the sons of Samuel Heminway, viz. John and Abraham, obtained a grant of the Mill privilege from Branford, as follows:

"Branford, 23 Augt. 1706.—At a meeting of the Proprietors, warned according to law, John and Abraham Heminway, of New-Haven Iron works, desire us to grant them liberty to erect a Dam on the Furnace pond, where it formerly was, and to get stone, and timber and earth to erect the same, on our side."

1. "We having considered the public benefit such a Mill may be, doe on the terms following grant the desire of the said John and Abraham Heminway, viz. that they shall raise the said Dam no higher than it was formerly, nor no higher, than shall be allowed by Mr. William Maltbie, Deacon John Rose, Sergt. Nathaniel Foot, of Branford, when they shall view said Mill place."

2. "John and Abraham Heminway and all who shall after them possess and improve said Mill, shall at all times, hereafter, grind what corn shall come from this Towne, in turn, as it shall come to said Mill, not preferring others before them."

3. "The said John and Abraham Heminway, their heirs and assigns, shall erect and maintayne a sufficient Mill at said place, at all times, hereafter forever; upon those aforesaid conditions, we grant the request of said John and Abraham Heminway. But if they or any, who shall at any time hereafter possess said mill, shall refuse or neglect to perform any or all the abovementioned conditions, then this grant shall be void and of no effect, that we, or our successors, may set up a Mill ourselves for the public benefit on this side.

Voted, and passed Test, by Wm. Maltbie, Clerk.—[Branford Rec.]

The manner of expression in this document intimates that the mill had not been erected by their father, as was expected when he obtained the village grant.

The water privilege where the forge stood was disposed of afterwards. Samuel Heminway applied to the town of New-Haven for it and obtained the following order:

"April 26th, 1687. Samuel Heminway moved to have liberty to set a fulling mill where the forge formerly stood. After much debate the towne granted liberty to the said Heminway to set up a fulling mill in the forementioned place, provided that he make no dam that shall make a pond to raise the water above two feet deep upon Austin's highway. And that he consider beforehand, whether such a dam, but of such a height as aforesaid, will answer his purpose."

Upon this grant, and one that was made by the village in 1706, John and Abraham Heminway, and John Marsh, jointly, erected a fulling mill in 1709, on the premises.

In 1684 it was contemplated to build a saw-mill on the first spring. That plan was relinquished, and one was built on Claypit brook, below Danforth’s swamp, which was abandoned many years ago.

The General History of the town continued—the half mile obtained—divisions of land—town Charters, &c.

A NEGOCIATION had been carried on with Branford, concerning land that lay within their bounds, that they had not paid for, and that New-Haven had granted to the village. Branford, finally, promised them land. But the execution of that promise was delayed; the village grew impatient and passed the following order:

“At a formal meeting of the village, 15th Feb. 1681, it was propounded that we might choose men to treat with Branford about the land in their bounds that was given to us and is now in contention. After some debate it was ordered and appointed, that John Potter, Samuel Heminway, John Thompson, Nathaniel Hitchcock, Alling Ball, jun. and Matthew Moulthrop, them or any four of them were empowered to treat that matter with our friends of Branford as to land or line, and finish it.”

This vote was predicated on a grant from New-Haven in Dec. 1679 as follows, viz.:—“For the Quinipiac land now within the town of Branford, and was at first bought by us, and never paid for by Branford to us, that the Towne would grant unto them our right, the better to enable them to treat with Branford for enlargement on the purchase money due, with the consideration that New-Haven hath been long out of purse.”

The same month that the village passed the before-mentioned vote, Branford acted on the subject thus:

“Whereas there is a difference between the Towne of Branford and the Ironworke farmers (or inhabitants of New-Haven) concerning the propriety of lands in Branford bounds. At a Towne meeting in Branford, Feb. 1681, the Towne have unanimously agreed to leave the case depending to a Committee. And the Towne have made choice of and appointed Mr. William Rosewell, Mr. Edward Barker, Thomas Harrison, William Headly, and Eleazer Stent, a Committee for the issue of the case aforesaid, and they do give them full power, in the behalf of the Towne, either by composition with the farmers, (or New-Haven inhabitants) or to manage the said case at General Court, either by themselves, or any other attorney or attorneys, as they see cause, and to be at what charge they cause in the management thereof. They do also desire and appoint the said Committee, to take into their custody whatsoever writings or conveyances, may be had (or copies of them) that concern the Towne.—And do engage to reimburse what charges the committee shall be at in the whole case."

But as an attempt to settle the controversy failed, the Village proceeded to the use of some high-toned language on the subject, which was met by Branford in the annexed resolution:

"Whereas the Ironworke farmers have given us notice that if we do not grant them land, then they will run a line in our bounds. At a Towne meeting in Branford, 8th July, 1681; the inhabitants of the Towne did answer and declare by vote that the farmers have no right to do with the running of any line or lines in our bounds, or within our Township, and, therefore, do protest against any such proceeding, as an invasion of our just rights and privileges, and further do forbid them or any of them to enter upon our Towne bounds with any such design, if they do, be it at their peril."

The case was brought before the General Court the next fall, and that body adopted some measures to promote an adjustment of their difficulties.

"At a General Court held at Hartford, 13th Oct. 1681.

"Whereas there is a difference between Branford and the farmers on the East side, about the line between New-Haven and sayd Branford, or New-Haven purchase of the Indians, this Court do request the Deputy Governor, and Mr. Andrew Leete, and Mr. Samuel Eales to take some pains to examine the case, and to endeavour an accommodation between them, and if they cannot attain an issue, they are to make report how they find it to the next Court, where both parties are to attend for issue, and the sayd Towne of Branford, and the farmers, are to attend to this affayre, when they shall be appointed by the Deputy Governor; they, viz. the Committee, are also to consider whether there be any obligation that doth lie upon New-Haven, that doth hinder this people from building a Dick at the East side or South-end."—[Col. Rec.]

This arrangement of the General Court had a happy effect. The parties came to a settlement of their difficulties, and Branford gave the village a deed, dated 8th May, 1682, for that tract of land called the half-mile, in which it was stipulated, that "the line shall run and be as formerly, from the sea to the head of the Furnace pond," &c. as it is described in the bounds already mentioned.

The 9th May, in behalf of the Village, Samuel Heminway, James Denison, John Potter, Matthew Moulthrop, John Thompson, and Nathaniel Hitchcock, gave a quit-claim to Branford, for lands within their bounds. The Committee appointed by the General Court reported their proceedings, which, by a formal vote, were accepted and ratified.

"Hartford, May, 1682. The Gentlemen of New-Haven and Branford had agreed about the purchase of their lands which they were appointed by the Court to issue; and Major Treat, William Leete, and Mr. Eales were desired to assist them in, Oct. last."—[Col. Rec.]

After the Village had obtained their Village grant from the General Court to become a society, they proceeded to transact local business, separately from the town of New-Haven. They seem to have apprehended that their Parish grant involved some authority for the choice of Village officers, and for the laying out and disposing of land within their Parish bounds. This course brought upon themselves and New-Haven a long scene of confusion and trouble, and not a little expense.

17th Jan. 1683. The Village granted to Deacon John Chedsey 3 acres on the north side of the green, for a home lot. And also one acre to Joseph, son of Ralph Russel, next to Stoney river, which he soon sold to John Potter, and John Potter the same day conveyed it to Isaac Bradley, on which he built his house. They also granted home lots to Thomas Pinion, John Luddington, James Taylor, and William Roberts, between the road that goes to Alling Ball's farm and the highway that leads to the fresh meadows. And it was confirmed by the town.

"At a meeting of the Village, 19th March, 1683, it is agreed by vote that in laying out the third division we will follow the method of New-Haven, viz. 20 acres for each hundred pounds in the list, and 4 acres to each child, and 20 acres to each family, tho' their heads and estates do not amount thereunto." And under date 26th Nov. 1683, "It was agreed to lay out the one half of said third division upon Stoney river, and the other half where it will be most convenient; and begin the lots as to their order upon the land next to the five men’s land at Foxon. John Potter and Matthew Moulthrop were appointed to lay out the lots, and John Thompson and Nathaniel Hitchcock were sizers.”

After the arrangements for the third division were made, they voted to lay out the third division, “by the list of the estates we give in to the payment of the minister this present year, with the addition of our persons’ heads, not there given in, because not rated, but here to be added, as in the following list alphabetically arranged.”

Matthew Moulthrop and Eliakim Hitchcock, according to appointment, made out the list as follows:

A Minister’s lot 50
A lot for the first Minister 50–976.5

† John Chedsey drew, but his estate not being all listed, the quantity of land is not mentioned. * These five had their land at Foxon.
With this small population, and with this small property, they supported a minister of the Gospel about four years.

"On the 26th Nov. 1682, the Village appointed M. Moulthrop, John Potter, John Thompson and Samuel Heminway, to revise the Village Records, and to select such as were useful to be preserved, and draw them up according to law. At a meeting 23d Jan. following, the Committee presented and read what they judged needful to stand upon record, which was approved and accepted by Vote, and the whole to be entered on their Ledger." Samuel Heminway was appointed Clerk. He was a neat, handsome penman.

Their public expenses, and some other embarrassments, were so great, that some began to cherish the idea that they should not be able to proceed, and especially as their crops had recently failed. They therefore took a vote, 29th March, 1684, "whether they should go forward in building up the Village." Nineteen men being present, they all voted to proceed.

At this meeting John Thompson, Matthew Moulthrop, and Samuel Heminway were chosen selectmen. And in August, John Thompson and Samuel Heminway were chosen collectors of rates, and George Pardee constable. And they continued to choose Village officers, and presented them to New-Haven for confirmation.

The proceedings of the Village in dividing land, gave offence to New-Haven, and they appointed a Committee to confer with the Village on the subject. The Village also appointed a Committee, to go to New-Haven and inform their Committee of all their proceedings.

But in 1685, they appear to have relinquished their Village privileges, and returned to their former connection with New-Haven; for about this time they requested New-Haven to furnish them with a further division of land, which was referred to a special Committee, whose report was accepted and recorded, as follows:

"In answer to the inhabitants of New-Haven, the Committee appointed by the Towne to consider their proposals about the third division, order as followeth:

"1. That in laying out the remainder of the third division, not yet taken up by the said inhabitants, being approved planters, it be laid out to them in quantity according to the list of estates in 1679, by appointed sizers, and Enos Tamadge for the Towne."
Precautions against the Indians.

"2. That the grants which have been made by the late Village Company to any of them, having a right to the third division as aforesaid, be accounted as part of such remainder of third division, except eight acres granted and laid out as appendix to the Mill.

"3. That they lay out the said remainder upon and out of the half mile of lands, or addition from Branford, as far as their granted bounds, provided that they lay it out as to others of the Towne, viz. one half mile in depth, and lying together, and not in particular tracts or parcels; and if there be not enough found there, then to make up their quantity elsewhere within the bounds formerly granted, provided, that the Towne commons, as formerly appointed, be stated by the now appointed sizers and surveyors, who are to view and lay out the said proportions of third division, and the remainder for commons.

"4. As to the grants of land made to sundry particular persons by the East side inhabitants, we see not cause at present to confirm; but before we so do, we expect that now, having laid down the Village designs, and being returned to their former station for power and privilege with ourselves as one plantation, that they plainly declare themselves in so doing without reservation, not to go off from us when they please, or judge themselves in a capacity for it without the Towne’s approbation in that case.

"5. We appoint Mr. Bishop, Capt. Mansfield, and Thomas Kimberly sizers, and Enos Tamadge surveyor; and at the charge of the East side inhabitants; and we desire their answer to these premises in writing under their hands."

[N. H. Rec.]

I cannot find any reply to these resolutions; but from this time their affairs seem to have proceeded without any particular controversy, until 1703, when the Village moved to resume their Village grant of 1680. The Village bore their proportion of town and colony charges, and endured great hardships and dangers, in attending public worship at New-Haven. After the termination of King Philip’s war, the Indians were frequently in a state of commotion. Some powerful tribes that were under the influence of the French in Canada, frequently assumed a hostile attitude. In 1689, the town prepared a flying army, which stood ready to march at a moment’s warning. A patrol of four horsemen was continually scouring the woods. And all the militia were obliged to carry their arms with them to public worship.
General Affairs.

prepared for battle. The Indians near the Village were sometimes employed as scouting parties, and in other respects as useful auxiliaries. The following anecdote received from the oldest man now living in the town, and received by him from his father, may be worth preserving:

A friendly Indian warrior was requested to act as sentinel in the Gap, north of Mullen hill. He consented, and for this purpose borrowed Mr. Heminway’s gun, and was assured it was well loaded. Without examination, he took the gun and repaired to his post. He soon perceived two enemy Indians descending into the valley from the Pond Rock, and advancing toward the Gap. They passed him, and when he had them in range, intending to kill both at one shot, he attempted to fire, but his gun only flashed, for it was not charged. The spies, without observing it, passed on across the fresh meadows, and mingled with the friendly Indians about Grave hill. The disappointed warrior was enraged, and threatened to kill Mr. H. for deceiving him in order that he might be killed. Mr. H. was innocent of the charge; for he had charged the gun himself, but some other person had discharged it without his knowledge, and priming, left it in the usual place in that condition. With the discovery of this fact, the warrior was finally pacified. But in a day or two, one of these spies was found dead on the Indian land,—and supposed to have been killed by the enraged warrior.

The people on the East side were exposed to many dangers and inconveniences in attending public worship at New-Haven. The year 1690 was sickly, and they lost a number of their useful men. Under all these circumstances, it was natural for them to desire relief.

After they returned to their former connection with New-Haven Society, Deacon John Chedesey, John Potter and John Austin, obtained liberty of New-Haven, to buy one quarter of an acre of the Indians at the Ferry place, to build housing for their horses, when they went to New-Haven. They obtained a deed for the land, 4th March, 1686, which was signed by Narranshanott, George Sagamore, Maug, and Kehow. They paid six shillings for it. And it was afterwards called Stable-point.

Nothing further appears on record of a special nature, respecting the Village, until the close of the year 1703. The following extracts from the Village records, will show the course of their affairs at that period.

"At a Village Meeting, 23d Decr. 1703. The inhabi-
List of Polls and Estates, 1702.

Tants voted that they would take up their Village grant; and to that end chose Capt. Alling Ball, Lieut. Samuel Hotchkiss, Samuel Heminway, Sergt. John Potter, William Luddington, Ensign John Russel and George Pardee, for a Committee to manage the concerns of the Village, in order to a settlement according to the General Court’s grant. And informed New-Haven of their design."

“In April, 1704, Caleb Chedsey was chosen Moderator, and Ebenezer Chedsey was chosen Clerk.”

“20th Nov. 1704. They voted that all the undivided land within the Village bounds shall be equally divided unto each of the present inhabitants, according to the heads and estates in 1702, when we were in a Village way, according to N. Haven grant, excepting persons that are tenants.”

“The Committee appointed to search for land reported that they judged there were yet 1200 acres of undivided land.”

“30th March, 1705, they agreed to lay out a half division of land, according to the list in 1702; and to draw lots who should pitch first, and next, &c.; and none shall pitch on the half mile gained from Branford. George Pardee was chosen to draw lots. Samuel Thompson and Samuel Hotchkiss, jun. were chosen surveyors of the half division.”

The following table will show their names, population, and estates in 1702, and the quantity of land divided to each person:

Polls 200 £2550 00 00 835½ acres.

Joseph Tuttle, John Miles, and Daniel Collins were made inhabitants in 1706.

The town of New-Haven was offended with the proceedings of the Village, respecting the laying out of land, and while the Village petition for the renewal of Parish privileges, was pending before the General Assembly, passed some angry resolutions, manifesting their unwillingness to admit the Village to Society privileges, and forbade the people south of Muddy river, and north of the Village line, to pay any longer to the support of the ministry there; but to return to New-Haven.

"April 24, 1705. The Townsmen moved the Towne to consider whether the Towne look on the grant formerly made by New-Haven, doth give them power to take up again a Village on the east side, and whether the right of soil in the bounds of said Village belongs to the inhabitants there. The Towne by vote declare that they look upon the said former grant for a Village on that side to have been some time since, and by sundry applications and matters of record, are super-ceeded and cancelled, and that those neighbours may not lawfully resume and manage a Village affairs without a new grant and allowance orderly made to them; and that the right of undivided and common land within the former grant in no wise is, or ever was, granted to the inhabitants of said Village, but is, and must remain at the disposal of the Towne of New-Haven, as much as any other tracts of common land, lying within the established boundary of New-Haven Towne. And whereas in said former grant the farmers on that side, northward of the Village bounds, were allowed to pay to the Ministry settled in said Village till farther orders. The Towne likewise doth order that those inhabitants, henceforward pay to the support of the Ministry in New-Haven platt, untill that matter shall be otherwise ordered by said Towne."

[N. H. Rec.]

The right of soil in the undivided land, did, indeed, belong to the town of New-Haven. And the Village had no right to make a division of common land, except the half-mile. That belonged to the Village by a deed from Branford, predicated on a special grant of New-Haven to that effect. New-Haven had no right of soil in the half-mile.

The Village, however, obtained from the General Assembly, a renewal of their Parish grant, which they had received in 1680. And they proceeded to manage their religious affairs in their own way.

New-Haven attempted to tax the Village as before, which was resisted by the Village. And on the 24th April, 1707, "The Village voted that 600 acres on the lower end of the half-mile should be sold to defend lawsuits against New-Haven, particularly when distressed for taxes. And that the purchasers should sue at the next County Court, after New-Haven had strained for taxes." William Luddington, John Russel, John Moulthrop, Joseph Tuttle, Daniel Collins, and Jacob Robinson, took the 600 acres on those conditions, and divided it among themselves. This tract lay between the Pond, and Bull-swamp bridge. Caleb Parmerly, Caleb Chedsey, and Isaac Penfield afterwards settled on it.

Some attempts to quiet this controversy were made, but without effect. In October, of this year, the Village proposed to New-Haven to take their whole right of lands within the Village bounds, and maintain their own poor. The next year, according to advice of the General Assembly, a Committee of twelve was appointed by both parties, and the articles of agreement proposed by the General Assembly, partly consented to, i. e. to take the common lands within their bounds and support their own poor. Some of the Village people, however, protested against any propositions that might infringe their old rights.

While these events were passing, the Village, 13th June, 1707, "Agreed to sequester a piece of land for a burying place, on the south side of the pond, on the Forthill so called, as much as may be spared from highways and watering cattle." Previous to this time they had buried their dead chiefly at New-Haven; but some were buried on the west side of the green.

In September, the village granted to Joshua Austin a piece of land near the springs, for beating the drum for public worship, and other public occasions.

About this time also, there was a difference between the Village and the South-end men, respecting the last division of land; but this was adjusted by admitting them to a full proportion with the rest.

To accomplish their object respecting further privileges the village proceeded thus:

"15th Feb. 1707. Sergt. John Potter and Joseph Tuttle were directed to attend a Town-meeting at New-Haven, and obtain their consent that this Village may be settled a distinct Towne."

The following spring the Village petitioned the General Assembly for that object, which was granted.

"May, 1707. This Assembly, considering the petition of the East Village of New-Haven do see cause to order that they shall be a Village distinct from the Towne of New-Haven, and invested and privileged with all immunities and privileges that are proper and necessary for a village, for the upholding of the public worship of God, as also their own civil concerns; and in order thereunto doe grant them libertie of all such officers so chosen as aforesaid and sworn as the law directs, shall be enabled with power and authority as fully and effectually for their limits or bounds as is already granted them, as any such officers of any Towne whatsoever: As also the said Village have libertie to have a school amongst themselves, with the privilege of the fortie shillings upon the £100 estate as every Towne hath by lawe, and also free their own village charge, and maintain their own poor as all towns are obliged to doe, and be fully freed from paying any taxes to the Towne of New-Haven, and shall be called by the name of East-Haven."—[Col. Rec.]
This is a very ample charter for all the common privileges, and immunities and duties of a Town. The right of choosing a representative is not, indeed, specified, but is implied in the "immunities and privileges of a Towne."—They are furnished with the officers and powers of a Town, and the specific duties of a Town are imposed. So the people considered the grant, and acted upon it by immediately choosing town officers, laying rates, and taking the charge of their own poor. And had the Village still co-operated with New-Haven in dividing their common lands, instead of assuming the right of dividing themselves, probably, they would not have been molested. But New-Haven was displeased, as appears from the following document:

"16th Sept. 1707. The Towne taking into their consideration, that, notwithstanding all fair and friendly endeavours have been used by our Committee, for a good agreement between us and our neighbours at the Ironworkes, that they have yet given us causeless trouble and charge, in that they have four times summoned us to answer them before the General Court, and in May last, have moved the said General Court that they may have the privileges of a separate Towne, and be freed from payment of Towne rates here, and also that they have unjustly entered upon, and granted sundry parcels of land, being our right and property, to the great prejudice of the Towne, and more particularly of some of their neighbours, do, therefore, by their vote declare, that altho' we have ever, hitherto, been willing, not only to grant them liberty, but all due encouragement to be a separate society for carrying on the worship of God; yet the above proceedings being not only injurious to our right, property, and privilege, secured to us by law, and our patent; but are also accompanied with great disturbance of the peace, and much disorder, which is likely to increase if not prevented, that, therefore, we may in no measure be satisfied therewith; but do order the Townsmen, with good advice in all proper methods of law, to endeavour the prevention thereof, and to secure our interest. Being informed also that the listers cannot obtain the bills of persons and estates from the aforesaid inhabitants of the Ironworkes, who refuse to deliver the same, on pretence that Towne privileges were conferred upon them separately by the General Court, in May last, that, therefore, our said listers are not capable to perfect their list, and to give the sum total thereof, according to an act of the General Assembly, in October last past, the Towne considering thereof, do declare that the sum total of their list cannot be known, and desire it should not be presented, "till it be perfected according to law."

In the year 1708, Gurdon Saltonstall was elected Governor. He had married the only child of William Rosewell, and of course came into the possession of the Furnace farm, on which he fixed his residence. It is a common tradition among the aged people of this town, that he constantly opposed their town privileges; and being a man of great influence, he had abundant opportunity to injure them. The most ancient man of this town, of excellent memory and judgment, and who was once conversant with the people of that generation, related to me the following anecdote, which will show the spirit of the times relative to East Haven affairs.

The people of the Village kept large flocks of geese; many of which found their way to the Furnace pond, and frequently passed over to the Governor’s farm. The Governor being vexed with this invasion of his rights, proclaimed a defensive war, attacked and routed the feathered army, making a great slaughter among them. The owners of the geese thought that this was a "cruel and unnecessary war," and were, in turn, greatly offended. And such was the effect upon the minds of the inhabitants generally, that at the next election for Governor, not a single vote from East Haven appeared for Saltonstall. After this discovery, the singular acts were passed by the General Assembly which destroyed their Charter.

Whether these representations respecting the hostility and influence of the Governor be correct, or not, it is certain that a most singular legislative legerdemain followed; and which, whenever adopted, is sufficient to ruin any charter, or fritter down any law, into perfect nonsense. It is similar in effect, to that exercise of power by which the Kings of England revoked charters, and disannulled laws, and rendered every privilege and all property totally insecure.

The controversy continued. And the General Assembly undertook to explain the act containing the town charter of East-Haven.

"New-Haven, Oct. 1710. This Assembly taking into consideration an Act passed in the General Court held at Hartford, 8th May 1707, granting several privileges to the Village called (in the said Act) East-Haven, do declare upon the same, that there is nothing contained in the said Act that concerns property of lands, or that excludes the said Village from being within the Township of New-Haven; nor that intends to give the said Village the liberty of choosing deputies distinct from the Town of New-Haven.”

[Col. Rec.]

"5th Feb. 1711. Caleb Chedsey, Sergt. John Potter, John Howe, Samuel Russel, Ab. Heminway, and Samuel Thompoeon, were chosen to goe to New-Haven and discourse with the Committee there, about the differences they speak of between them and us, and to make return to the Village, and not to conclude of any thing respecting the aforesaid matters, without the approbation of the Village.”

Nothing, however, was accomplished by this attempt at explanation. The Commentary of the General Assembly did not even diminish the magnitude of the controversy. East-Haven pursued their own course, and New-Haven threatened and prosecuted the people for their taxes.

In 1716, East-Haven again cited New-Haven before the General Assembly, in hope that they should be able to maintain their town privileges on the charter of 1707. But contrary to their expectations, this application only brought forth a commentary on the commentary last mentioned.

"New-Haven, Oct. 1716. Upon consideration of the petition of the inhabitants at the Village of East-Haven, this Assembly find upon examination that the last act of this Assembly, dated Oct. 1710, determines them to have no other powers than those that are common to other parishes, and, therefore, are of opinion that the law does not put the care of the poor into their hands, but into the Town of New-Haven.”—[Col. Rec.]

In December of the same year, New-Haven "Voted to clear the inhabitants of East-Haven Village of all taxes to the Ministry or School, so long as they support the same according to the laws of this Colony." And appointed a Committee to settle with them about civil matters; and if they could not settle, they were determined to prosecute.

In January, 1708, the Village found themselves in debt to their Minister and meeting-house, and in order to cancel those debts, they voted to sell the half-mile. "The division to begin near Mr. Pierpont's and so come down. The land to be laid out in two tiers of lots, with a six rod road thro' the middle; and the land was valued at one shilling and eight pence per acre. And proportioned at Sale and Division of Lands.

The rate of 5 acres to the £100 estate, and one acre to the poll. The land was apportioned as follows, and the money was paid to Caleb Chedsey, Treasurer."

They also granted lots of land in other parts of the village upon the petition of individuals.

"The Selectmen were requested to get a man to beat the drum on the Sabbath, and for other meetings of the village, as reasonably as they could." This was also the practice in some of the other villages, for many years.

"At a village meeting 15th Feb. 1709, agreed to sell all the undivided lands on the pond Rock to the upper end. Thence South of a line from the south corner of Robert Dawson's home lot, a strait line to the northeast corner of Davenport's farme, except the parsonage lands, 30 acres near the Cove, 12 near John Luddington's home lot, 12 under the Indian grave hill: by the road leading to Southend 16. —30 acres more under the Indian hill: and a 100 rods in breadth from the path that leads to Capt. Alling Ball's. The rest to be sequestrered for building the minister's house."

"25th Feb. 1709. Another half division of land was made at the rate of five acres on the £100 estate and one acre on the Poll." Eliphalet Pardee drew the lots.

Polls, 210 £2497 00 00 328½

Southend men are not in this list.
In December 1713, the village laid a rate for the poor, of 1/4d. At that period wheat sold at 5s. rye at 3s.6d. corn 2s.2d. as good as money.

In 1720, wheat sold at 5s. rye 3s. corn 2s. per bushel, and wood 2s.6d. per load.

The Mechanics were at this time, Joseph Tuttle, John Auger and Ebenezer Chedsey, shoemakers; Samuel Bradley, lock-smith; Daniel Bradley, black-smith; Joseph Abbot and Jacob Robinson, weavers; John Miles, clothier; Thomas Robinson and William Bradley, tailors; Thomas Smith, cooper; Isaac Bradley and Henry Luddington, carpenters.

"The Village meetings to be warned by beating a drum on Monday, from Chedsey's hill to Goodsell's hill, and also to call at some places to give notice of the meeting, to be given the same day morning before the meeting is held."

"28th March 1715. Voted to lay lots from Capt. John Russell's, at the end of the hill and across it, sixty rods in length, up to Piper's brook, as broken land."—Some of the way the lots were forty rods long—and they also divided other broken lands. In the same month they drew lots for the Pond Rock, and the other two half divisions, beginning at the end of the Rock. Forty-eight men drew their lots. They were the same as in the preceding list—

"And as the Southend men have not had their share, voted to make up the deficiency in the same manner, as for themselves." The men were Nathaniel Hitchcock, Eleazar Morris, John Denison, Samuel Smith, Thomas Hitchcock. This was the last division of land, it being now all taken up. The Indian Reservation was sold about the year 1730.

In March, 1717, Matthew Moulthrop, the third, sold his homestead to Thomas Shepard of Branford, and removed to the hill west of Foxon.—Samuel Thompson, jun. built north of him. Next were Benjamin and Ashur Moulthrop. Israel Moulthrop bought the house which Eleazar Morris had begun to build just before his death—Henry Luddington was west of him. Robert Dawson, Samuel Smith and his son Isaac, Russel Grannis, —— Bracket and Edward Russel, north of Samuel Thompson. Isaac and Samuel Chedsey were south of M. Moulthrop.

From Mullen Hill on the Foxon Road, were James Denison, John Howel, Joseph Holt, succeeded by Timothy Andrews, then Isaac Holt, Samuel Holt, succeeded by his son Joseph. Eliphalet and William Luddington, succeeded by Location of the Inhabitants.

Isaac Luddington—then Ebenezer Bradley, succeeded by Ezra Fields—then John Smith, Stephen Pardee, succeeded by Edward Russel, jun.—Isaac Goodsell—Daniel Holt and his son Dan—Jesse Denison, succeeded by John Denison and Joseph Grannis—then Thomas Grannis, —Potter, Joseph, jun. and Isaac Grannis, Caleb Chedsey, jun. Samuel Russel, jun. Thomas Dawson, Israel Potter, Nathaniel Jocelin, Caleb Chedsey and his son Isaac—Isaac Penfield on the hill. Caleb Farmerly where the late Deacon S. Smith lived—and Joel Tuttle, succeeded by his son Christopher.

On the road west of Mullen Hill, were Samuel Hotchkiss, succeeded by Dan Bradley—then Isaac Bradley, John Chedsey, John Russel, and the Davenport house.

West of Foxon road were Nathaniel Luddington, Jesse Luddington, Stephen Pardee, jun. and Levi Bradley.

On the Post road near Stoney River, were Daniel Bradley and his sons Stephen, Timothy and Jacob—Ebenezer Chedsey bought Isaac Bradley’s house north of D. Bradley—Daniel Hitchcock succeeded John Potter—Abraham Chedsey on Chedsey hill—Jared and Samuel east side of the Green, the latter succeeded by Zebulon Bradley—Gideon Potter on the west side of the Green—next south were John and Samuel Heminway, Stephen Thompson—Moses Thompson, succeeded by Mr. Street—Abraham Heminway, Joseph Potter—then James Way, David Potter and —— Mallory.—Samuel Bradley was opposite the Austin place, succeeded by Simeon his son—then Caleb Bradley, Thomas Barns, Samuel Forbes, jun. and Nathaniel Barnes on the hill, and Daniel Auger opposite. Then Samuel Goodsell, succeeded by his son Jacob—then Daniel Collins and Abel his son—Thomas Robinson, jun.—On the back road north of Tuttle’s bridge were Benjamin Robinson and Dan Goodsell and his son Edward. In Dragon woods were Job Smith, William Bradley, Henry O’Neal and James A. Broton.

Daniel Morris was on the Indian land, succeeded by Joseph Tuttle. Near the Bridge were Noah Tuttle, his son Timothy, Elam Luddington, Jehiel Forbes and the Hughes family.

The Rowe, Brown, Pardee, Woodward, Morris, and the Smith and Thompson families at southend, remain on the land of their ancestors. Abel and James Smith, Caleb and Nathaniel Hitchcock, Joseph Moulthrop, and some of the Robinson family, settled on the half-mile, now chiefly with—in the bounds of North-Haven. Jacob Robinson and son John, lived north of Foxon.

After the year 1716, for a long time, very little appears on record, concerning the civil concerns of the Village. The General Assembly having explained away all their privileges, rights and duties as a Town, they had nothing to do, nor any thing to enjoy, but under the jurisdiction of New-Haven, excepting the duties and privileges of a mere Parish.

Being silenced by the terror of law-suits and "the powers that be," they yielded; until another generation arose that had not known a Sultonstal, and which began to think again that the act of 1707, really meant something according to the natural import of words. And accordingly, on the 18th December, 1752, "Voted, That we will take up the privileges that the General Assembly and the Town of New-Haven have formerly granted for the time being; and in order to do this, do send our Memorial forthwith to the Town meeting now sitting."

"6th December, 1753. We the subscribers, Selectmen of the Town of East-Haven, hereby beg leave to inform the inhabitants of the Town of New-Haven in Town meeting assembled, that whereas the General Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut, at their session at Hartford, on the 8th May, 1707, on the humble petition of the then East Village of New-Haven, were pleased to order, "That the said Village, should be a Village distinct from the Town of New-Haven, and invested and priviledged with all immunities and privileges, proper and necessary for a Village, for the upholding the worship of God, as also their own civil concerns;" and did also grant them liberty of all such officers as are proper and necessary for a Town, to be chosen by themselves, in order and form as all Towns by law, for each or any Town, and that all such officers so chosen as aforesaid and sworn as the law directs, should be enabled with power and authority as fully and effectually for their limits and bounds as any such officers of any Town whatsoever, and should be freed from paying any taxes to the Town of New-Haven, and be called by the name of East-Haven. And whereas the Town of East-Haven, in pursuance of the said grant of the said General Assembly, did on the 6th December inst. in Town meeting regularly convened, proceed to choose the officers by law directed in Town meetings to be chosen, and to make such rules, orders and regulations, as were necessary for the welfare and due regulation of said Objection of the Assembly.

Town, and are determined hereafter to continue to take benefit of the said grant of the General Assembly, and therein conduct according to the laws of this Colony, respecting the regulation and due Government of Towns, we have thought it our duty, and accordingly do in behalf of said Town of East-Haven and by direction from them, hereby notify the Town of New-Haven of such their resolutions and conduct, in order that the said Town of New-Haven may hereafter exempt themselves from any further care or trouble respecting the affairs of the said Town of East-Haven, the regulation thereof, or the appointment of officers therein, whereof we doubt not your favourable acceptance and approbation, and are with gratitude for your past assistance, kindness and care:

Gentlemen, your humble servants.
ROSEWELL WOODWARD,
ISAAC BLAKESLEE,
SAMUEL HEMINWAY,
DANIEL HOLT,

Selectmen of the Town of East-Haven.

East-Haven, 6th Dec. 1753."

At the next meeting, 13th December, “Voted to defray the expenses of the Selectmen in defending us from the Town of New-Haven.”

These proceedings, however, brought upon them, once more, the broad hand of the General Assembly, as follows:

“New-Haven, October, 1754. Whereas by the law of this Colony respecting the office and duty of listers, provision is made for the sum total of the list of the several Towns in this Colony, to be sent in to this Assembly, and whereas the Village, or Society of East-Haven, in the Town of New-Haven, have sent the sum total of their list into this Assembly, distinct from the Town of New-Haven, which this Assembly judging to be contrary to the law aforesaid, for that Towns only are to send in their list, do reject the same, it not being the list of any Town—But forasmuch as it appears to this Assembly, that the said Society in sending said list, acted through mistake and misapprehension, do thereupon order, that the sum total of the list sent in by said Society, be added to the sum total of the list of the Town of New-Haven, to make one sum, and that the same be entered on the records as the list of said Town accordingly. It is also further ordered that the listers of New-Haven inspect the list of the inhabitants of said Society, with the rest of the inhabitants of said Town, according to law. And the several persons who received and made up the list of said Society, as listers, are hereby ordered to deliver the several lists of the inhabitants of said Society to the listers of the Town of New Haven, that they may make up one general list, to be delivered to the Town Clerk as the law directs; and the Secretary of the Colony is directed to deliver two copies of this act to the Sheriff of New-Haven County, one by him to be delivered to the listers of said Town of New-Haven, and the other to the person or persons who received and made up the lists of said Society, for their direction respectively in the premises. —

[Col. Records.]

Thus another fatal blow was given to the act of 1707. The Village, however, was very obstinate, and was determined not to yield. But in order to remove and prevent any further objections to what they apprehended to be their rights, on the 3d February, 1755, "They appointed a Committee to apply to the General Court for Town privileges according to a former Grant, and to refuse to pay the two last rates of the Town; and to make an agreement with New-Haven about it, if they could."

But this plan failed. They then resumed their old ground, and on the 16th June, "Voted, that we will proceed further with respect to our privileges granted formerly to us by the General Assembly, and will try it in the common law with the Town of New-Haven, if they strain for our Town rates." And a Committee was appointed to manage this business.

They persisted in choosing officers annually, and yet appear to have acted with New-Haven in Town business. Nothing more appears on record respecting this controversy, until May, 1780, when the Village "Voted to apply to the General Assembly, to ratify and confirm our Town privileges, granted to this Village in 1707, and that a Committee go to New-Haven, and let them know that we are determined to act in defence of said privileges."

In December, 1781, This business was again introduced, and it was "Voted that a Committee be appointed to go to New-Haven to the next Town meeting, to petition them to give their assent and approbation to our taking up our Village grant of 1707, and to act upon the same."

"January 1, 1782. Voted, That Levi Pardee go round to the people, to know whether they are willing to be a Town, or not."
Grant of Town Charter.

"3d January, Voted, That we will petition the General Assembly, that they make us a distinct Town from New-Haven." In the prosecution of this object they persevered. And at length, after about 80 years of labour and controversy, obtained their object. In 1785, New-Haven consented that they should become a Town. They presented a petition to the General Assembly, and obtained the following grant.

"At a General Assembly Holden at Hartford, on the second Tuesday of May, 1785; upon the Memorial of the inhabitants of the parish of East-Haven, in the Town of New-Haven, representing to this Assembly the many inconveniences they are subject to by reason of their being connected with, and being a part of the Town of New-Haven, praying that they may be constituted a distinct and separate Town by themselves, as per memorial;

"Resolved by this Assembly, That the said inhabitants of said parish of East-Haven be, and they are hereby constituted a Town by the name of East-Haven. And the bounds of the said Town of East-Haven, shall be the same as the bounds of the said Parish now are, and the said Town of East-Haven shall be entitled to, and have and enjoy all the rights, privileges, and immunities that the other Towns in this State enjoy; and shall have liberty to elect and appoint all officers necessary and proper for a Town, to lay taxes and collect them as Towns in this State are allowed by law, and to do and transact all matters necessary and proper for a Town. And the said Town of East-Haven shall be entitled to receive of the said Town of New-Haven, their part and proportion of all the Town Stock of said Town of New-Haven; and said Town of East-Haven, shall pay their part and proportion of all the debts of said Town of New-Haven already incurred, in proportion to the sum of their list, in the list of the Town of New-Haven, and shall take upon them the charge and support of their part of the Town poor of said Town of New-Haven, in proportion as aforesaid. And the taxes of said Town of New-Haven, already laid, shall and may be collected and applied for the payment of the debts and expenses of said Town of New-Haven, already incurred, and the same being paid and discharged, said Town of East-Haven shall be entitled to their part and proportion of the overplus, if any be, to be ascertained as aforesaid. And the said Town of East-Haven shall bear their part and proportion of supporting the bridges and highways within the bounds of the Town of New-Haven and East-Haven, in such part and proportion as shall be judged just and reasonable, by William S. Johnson, Jonathan Sturgis and John Chester, Esq. who are appointed a Committee for that purpose, all the circumstances of the Town being duly considered; and said Committee shall appoint and set off to said Town of East-Haven their part and proportion of the poor of the said Town of New-Haven, and the stock and debts in proportion to their lists as aforesaid.

"And the said Town of East-Haven shall hold their first Town meeting, at the meeting-house in said East-Haven, on the first Tuesday of July next, at 10 o'clock A. M. when they may choose such Town Officers as by law are required, who shall remain in office until another meeting shall be held in and for said Town, in the month of December next. And said meeting shall have power and authority to transact all matters necessary for a Town, and to adjourn to a future period if necessary, said inhabitants, legal voters, being warned three days before said meeting by Isaac Chedsey, Stephen Smith and Joshua Austin of said Town of East-Haven, or any of them, to meet as aforesaid, and Stephen Smith shall preside at said meeting until a Moderator of said meeting shall be chosen, and shall take and count the votes of said Town for their Moderator; provided nothing shall be construed to hinder the inhabitants of the Town of New-Haven from catching fish, oysters and clams within the bounds of said Town of East-Haven, under the same restrictions and regulations that the said inhabitants of said East-Haven shall be. Provided also, that the said Town of East-Haven shall have liberty to send one representative to the General Assembly of this State."—[State and Town Records.]

The first Town Meeting under this act was held in the Meeting-house on the first Tuesday of July, 1785. The meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. Mr. Street, and a sermon adapted to the occasion from Psalm cxxii. 3, 7, 8, 9—And the necessary Town Officers were appointed.

Previous to these transactions, New-Haven confirmed the doings of the Village respecting the divisions of land in East-Haven, which had been the subject of so much controversy; and the people of East-Haven on their part, relinquished their claim to all the common lands in the other parts of the Town of New-Haven. Thus all their controversies, which had agitated the Town for about eighty years, were brought to a happy issue.

Rev. John Woodward was admitted an inhabitant of New-Haven, 1716, and obtained liberty of the Town to buy of the Indians one acre of land, to accommodate his house. He bought various pieces of land around him, and thus became possessed of a convenient farm. In 1738, he was chosen Moderator of Society meeting. This is his first appearance on the Village records.

Deodate Davenport came from Stamford, and appears first on Record, 1729. Samuel Forbes is mentioned, 1728, and was employed in ship-building, on the point below the mill. Joseph Bishop appears on record, 1751.

Samuel Heminway was the first Clerk of the Village. Then Ebenezer Chedsey, from 1702, to his death in 1726. Then Samuel Hotchkiss one year, and then Gideon Potter until 1757. Then Isaac Holt and Timothy Andrews a short time. Then Simeon Bradley from 1763 to 1778, excepting the year '68, when Abraham Heminway served. Joshua Austin was chosen in 1779—and Josiah Bradley, 1787.

Joseph Potter was appointed Sexton in 1742. The price for 3 winter months, all above 10 years, eleven shillings; all under 10, ten shillings,—and the other 9 months, six shillings. In 1747, Ebenezer Darrow was appointed Sexton, and had one shilling more than J. Potter had. Then in 1763, James Way—and in 1765 was succeeded by Samuel Shepard, and he was succeeded by his son Thomas Shepard.

A list of the Freemen in East-Haven was made up and recorded in the year 1754—as follows:

In 1782 the General Assembly, by a special act, secured the right of the Ferry at Ferry Point, to the Parish of East-Haven. The water bounds between New-Haven and East-Haven were settled 1789. The line is in the middle of the Quinipiack River, and along the channel of the Harbour to the sea.

The same year the town granted the owners of the salt meadow the privilege of building a dam across the Stoney River at the lower narrows.

It being in contemplation to build a bridge at Dragon Point, a committee was appointed to oppose it; but without effect, for it was built in 1790–1. Samuel Davenport was then appointed to show cause why the people of East-Haven should not pay toll to Dragon Bridge; but after much altercation, the remonstrance came to nothing. In 1792, new roads were laid out to favour the bridge. In 1796, a grant was made by the General Assembly, for a bridge at the new Ferry, to Enos Heminway, Stephen Woodward and others. Thus the Harbour bridge was built.

"16th Feb. 1797. At a Proprietors' meeting, granted to Enos Heminway, Stephen Woodward and company, of the bridge, the flats, 187 feet in width, from the landing where the lower Ferry hath lately been kept, running westward to the channel, on which a bridge of 27 feet in width is to be built on the centre, and the remainder for the perpetual use of the company for wharves, stores, &c. so long as the said bridge shall be built and be kept in good repair." They then voted to grant all the Flats to the town of East-Haven.

"March 13, 1797—Voted an enlargement of the burying ground. The north line to run straight from the northwest corner of Moses Thompson's house, running westward in a straight line and course, leaving Nehemiah Smith's house 57 feet to the south of said line." Then—"Voted that we do give up to the Town of East-Haven all the propriety right which we now have to the common and undivided lands and highways within said Town."

CHAP. V.

ON ECCLESIASTICAL AFFAIRS.

Society formed; Church gathered; Ministers ordained; Meeting-houses built; Glebe property laid out and sold.

THE inhabitants on the east side of the Quinipiack, from their first settlement, attended public worship at New-Haven; but with great inconvenience, labour, and danger. They were obliged to leave home early in the morning, travel through the woods, on unmade roads, and then cross the Ferry, which was often dangerous. During the Indian wars and commotions, the women and children, on the Sabbath, were collected together at one house in the neighbourhood, under the protection of a guard, while some part of the families attended public worship at New-Haven. And for many years, the men were required by law, under the penalty of a fine, to appear at meeting, with their arms, ready for battle. Similar inconveniences attended the trans- action of their business at New-Haven. It was natural for them, therefore, to anticipate advantages from being organized as a distinct parish from New-Haven. With zeal they prosecuted this object. In the year 1678, they petitioned New-Haven for their consent to become a distinct village, and for some other privileges. Not succeeding that year, on the 18th Aug. 1679, they renewed their application, which resulted as follows:

"At a town meeting held in New-Haven, 29th Dec. 1679 —and for the village on the East side, those inhabitants gave in their propositions to the Committee, which they desired might be granted, which were—

1. That they might have liberty to get a Minister amongst them for their meeting, and keep the Sabbath in a way as they ought.

2. That boundary might be granted them as high as Muddy River.

3. That they have liberty of admitting inhabitants among them, for their help in the work and maintenance of a Minister.

4. That they may have liberty to purchase some lands of the Indians, near Mr. Gregson's, if the Indians are willing to part with it.

5. That what land of the Quinipiack is within Branford stated bounds, the right of the purchase may be given them.

6. Lastly, that they may be freed from rates to the Towne when they shall have procured a Minister."

This business was referred to a committee, to report at next meeting.

"At a Town Meeting, held in New-Haven, 29th Decr. 1679—the inhabitants of Stoney River, Southend, and some others, on the East side of the River, having formerly made a motion, and for several reasons therein expressed, to have liberty among themselves, to procure a minister to preach the Word and administer ordinances among them, and several other particulars, as in their petition more fully appears; the Towne at their request appointed a Committee to examine and prepare matters against some other meeting; and after some consideration of the business, did prepare an answer, and made return to the Towne at the aforesaid meeting which is as followeth.

"1. That they be encouraged and have liberty granted to get a Minister to settle amongst them as soon as it doth appear they are in a capacity to maintain a Minister and uphold the ordinances of Christ.

"2. That when they are settled in a village way with Ministry, they have liberty to admit their own inhabitants for the future, but to attend to such cautions and considerations for the regulation of their settlement, as may consist with the interest of religion, and the Congregational way of the Churches, provided for, to be upheld.

"3. As to the purchase of land of the Indians near Mr. Gregson's farme; New-Haven being bound in covenant to supply the Indians with land for planting when they need, how far liberty to purchase lands of them may consist with that engagement, unless with due caution, is to be considered."

[The 4th article has been already quoted—see page 31.]

"5. For the payment of rates to New-Haven, that they be freed from it when they are settled in a Village way with Ministry.

"6. For Commonage, that the stated Commonage be at liberty on that side of the River within their limits, for the use of New-Haven as hitherto, and what shall remain for commonage within be agreed upon.

"7. That the inhabitants of New-Haven, that live in the Towne, and have propriety in land on the Indian side, whilst they so continue, pay their rates to New-Haven as hitherto.

"8. That their bounds shall be the north side of Alling Ball’s farme, by a line from the River as his line runs untill it meets with Branford line, above Foxon’s; and that
the Ministry with them, and such not to pay to the Ministry at New-Haven, whilst they so do, untill further orders."

After the Towne had heard the considerations of the Committee in answer to the inhabitants on the East side respecting the Village; the Town approved and confirmed it to be their order by Vote.

Agreeable to this grant, the Village applied to the General Court for a law to locate and incorporate them as a Society. That transaction will appear from the following documents. So early as May, 1667, they had requested this privilege of the General Assembly, when they Resolved, “Upon the Motion of the Deputies of New-Haven, this Court grants the Towne liberty to make a Village on the East side of the East River, if they see it capable for such a thing, provided they settle a Village there within four years from May next."

“A General Court of Election held at Hartford, 13th
May, 1680. In answer to the petition of John Potter, Samuel Heminway and Eliakim Hitchcock, that they might have liberty (they having obtained consent of New-Haven) to become a Village and to set up a distinct Congregation there, with liberty to invite and settle an orthodox Minister amongst them.
Parish Grants.

"This Court considering the great difficulties they have met with all in their passage to attend the publique worship of God hitherto, and upon hopes that they may be capable to set up and mayntaine the publique worship of God in that place, as a particular Society of themselfes, doe grant them free liberty, if they do find themselves able, to proceed and carry on the worke in the best way they can, and for their encouragement therein and towards erecting a place for publique worship, this Court will free them from country rates for three yeares; the time to commence when they have a Minister amongst them, and then they are also to be free from the payment of rates to New-Haven, and not before; and this Court doe desire Mr. Jones, Mr. Bishop and Capt. Nash, to treat with their neighbours of Branford to grant the said Village what enlargement they can upon the account of good neighbourhood, and the necessity of the case, and New-Haven purchase; and this Court shall be ready to grant them what encouragement they may, as it shall be desired of them for the future; and it is also ordered that if upon tryall they shall find themselves able to goe thorow such a worke as mayntayning a settled Ministry amongst them, and are destitute of one, they shall return to their first station to New-Haven till they shall be able to goe thorow the worke."—[Col. Rec.]

According to this grant the Village immediately proceeded in making arrangements to obtain a preacher.

"17th January, 1681, They appointed John Thompson and Samuel Heminway to speak with Mr. James Alling to know his mind in reference to his settling with us in the worke of the ministry."

"At the same meeting the Village granted 100 acres of land to the encouragement of the Ministry amongst them. The one half of which they give to the first minister that shall settle with them in that worke. And the other half for the standing use of the Ministry here forever. And that this last fifty acres, given to the Ministry, shall not be given away to any, either by major vote or otherwise."

The Committee applied to Mr. Alling, who served them several months, but contemplating a long journey, he declined their invitation to stay longer with them. The Committee reported this to the Village meeting, and "they then agreed to look out some other meet person, to carry on the worke of the ministry here. They directed their Committee to renew their application to Mr. Alling, and if unsuccessful, then goe to Mr. Harriman, and treat with him, and desire his help in the Ministry amongst us, and further, to give him an invitation to a settlement in the worke of the ministry amongst us. It was also ordered that Matthew Moulthrop, and John Potter doe set out five acres of the land upon the Green, formerly granted, the one half for the Ministry, and one half for the first Minister that shall settle with us, and they are to leave the spring clear, for a watering place for cattle. It is also agreed that the 95 acres to the Ministry, and the minister that shall settle with us, the one half of it shall be laid as near home as may be, and the other half upon Stoney River."

This land was laid out as follows: "Five acres on the South-east corner of the Green, on which Mr. Heminway's house was built. 12 1/2 acres beyond the bridge swamp. 31 acres lying at the Solitary Cove—this lot lies between the paths that goe to the Cove Meadow. 12 acres near John Luddington's home lot—16 acres by the road leading to Southend—48 acres under Indian Grave hill. And a 100 rods in breadth from the path that leads from Foxon's to Capt. Alling Ball's—and 30 acres on the half mile when that was divided."

A part of this land was sold to Rev. J. Heminway, to pay up the arrears of his salary. And some of it was sold to defray the expenses incurred for building the first meetinghouse. And 50 acres was given to Mr. Heminway as the first minister. In 1739, the parsonage lands were all resurveyed, and another piece was added, south of Samuel Hotchkiss's farm. "And all the above parcels of land, were by vote, sequestered and set apart to be improved for upholding the Presbyterian Ministry in this Society forever."—And entered on New-Haven records.

Mr. Harriman was employed, and the Village raised by tax £50 for his support—"current money with the merchant." And they gave him a formal call in November, 1683.

"They also voted to proceed immediately to build a house for the minister, and to finish it in a year." This they atttempted to accomplish by a subscription, which is a specimen of the public spirit of the Village at that period.

"A Catalogue of the persons, together with the several sums they (this day) promise freely to contribute towards building the minister's house and fencing the home lot, which are as follows:—"

"Matthew Moulthrop will do what he can. John Potter also. Joseph Abbot, 25 rods of rail fence about the home lot."

"The house is to be 36 feet long and two stories high. And to be set on the side of the Green, west of Matthew Moulthrop's." The house, however, was not built at that time, and it is probable that Mr. Harriman did not continue long with them; as they seem not to have proceeded in their Society plans after 1684 or 5. For in 1686, they are mentioned in a land affair, as having returned to their former connection with New-Haven.—Unhappily, there is a chasm in the Village Records from April, 1685, to 23d December, 1703.

At a meeting held at the last mentioned date, "The Inhabitants voted to take up their Village grant; and appointed a Committee to manage the concerns of the Village in order to a settlement, according to the General Court grant, and informed New-Haven of their design." They pursued that object, and in September the next year, appointed a Committee to prefer a petition to the General Assembly, to meet in October, at New-Haven. A petition was presented and met with success.

"At a General Assembly at Hartford, May 1704. This assembly having considered the petition of Capt. Alling Ball and John Potter, inhabitants on the east side of the East River, in the Township of New Haven, moving, that whereas this Assembly did formerly grant that they should be a distinct society, and have liberty to call and settle a Minister amongst them, when they should find themselves able to maintain the ordinances of God in a suitable manner, and that they doe apprehend that they are able so to doe, that, therefore, this Assembly would please to grant them certain privileges, and other matters and things for their encourage-ment, and enabling them to goe forward with that worke; this Assembly for divers weighty reasons doe see cause to referre the further consideration of their petition to their General Assembly in Oct. next. And if the inhabitants of New-Haven doe not appear, at the said General Assembly, and there make their pleas, then the petition shall be granted, with this restriction, that the propriety of lands shall not be concerned with."

"General Assembly, holden at New-Haven, 11th Oct. 1703, Samuel Heminway, Thomas Goodsell, Alling Ball, John Potter Jun. John Moulthrop, Samuel Thompson, and Abraham Heminway, presenting a petition on the behalf of the inhabitants, or Village on the East side of New-Haven East River, wherein they pray for the reestablishment of a former grant (excepting their freedom from countrie rates for three years, which privilege they have formerly enjoyed) and also empower them from time to time to make rates upon the inhabitants within the bounds of the said Village, as express and stated in the grant of New-Haven, Nov. 29, 1679—for the maintenance of their minister and building a meeting house, and to choose collectors, for collecting said rates, and a Constable and Societie Recorder to record the orders of the said Village, respecting the ministrie and meeting house."

[Col. Rec.]

While these matters were pending, they were making preparation, and looking about them, for a minister. Jacob, the youngest son of Samuel Heminway, and born in the Village, graduated at the college at Saybrook, under the Presidency of the Rev. Abraham Pierson, 1703, and was then about 20 years of age.—To him the people turned their attention.

"At a meeting of the Village, 20th Nov. 1704, Voted to look out for a minister to carry on the publick worship of God amongst us; and it was voted—

1. To seek to Sir Heminway that he would give them a taste of his gifts in order to settlement in the worke of the ministry. And—

2. Voted to desire John Potter, Sen. Caleb Chedsey, and Ebenezer Chedsey, to treat with Sir Heminway, to get him, if they could, to give them a taste of his gifts in preaching the Word."
At another meeting of the Village, 19th Dec. following—
"They having had some taste of Sir Heminway in preaching the Word, did declare their desire to have him go on in the worke of the Ministry amongst us, in order to settlement; and towards his encouragement they engage to allow him after the rate of £40 by the year in pay. And, Voted that George Pardee and Caleb Chedsey signify our desires and propositions to Sir Heminway, and take his answer and make returne."

The Committee immediately consulted Mr. Heminway, and reported at the same meeting, "That Sir Heminway does comply with their motion, God’s grace assisting, and does accept the proposition, and desires some consideration with respect to wood."

The next month they voted to give him £50 a year. They continued in this state until the close of the year 1706, when, at a meeting, the village appointed "William Luddington and John Potter to treat with Sir Jacob Heminway, to see whether he will goe on in the worke of the Ministry amongst us." And the same day reported Mr. Heminway’s answer in writing.

"Gentlemen, Whereas you have given me notice by two men, that you desire me to carry on the work of the Ministry in order to settlement among you. I do, therefore, hereby give you notice that so far as God shall enable me thereunto, I am heartily ready and willing to gratify these your desires upon these conditions—1. That you give me £50 yearly, and my wood. 2. That you build me a good convenient dwelling house, within 2 years time, or give me money sufficient to do the same, one half this year ensuing, and one half the next. 3. That when it is in your power, you give me a good and sufficient portion of land.

From my study, 2d Decr. 1706. Yours to serve.

JACOB HEMINWAY."

On the 26th of the same month, the Village met and voted, "We do promise Mr. Heminway, if he will carry on the work of the Ministry in said Village, to build him a house, if we can, in two years after this date, and give him £50 pay, and his wood. And in the mean time, if he wants a house, to hire him one." To accomplish these objects they laid a tax of four-pence farthing.

In the year 1707, the village built a house for Mr. Heminway, 40 feet long and 20 feet wide, on a five acre lot, on the south-east corner of the Green. One half acre was al-allowed to set the house upon, adjoining to Mr. Heminway's home lot. The wages in working at the house were three shillings a day for a man, and six for a team.

The terms proposed were adjusted and ratified in 1709. They gave to him the house and lot it stood on—also twelve acres on the cove road, twelve acres in the bridge swamp, 30 acres in the half mile, £50 per annum, and sufficient wood, "if he performs the worke of the Ministry so long as he is able; or if it be our fault that he is forced to leave us, it shall be his. But if it be his fault, or he leaves the place, or is hindered in the worke, then the property is to return to the Village. And he is to have the use of the Parsonage land."

The same year, "3d May, 1709, voted to petition the General Assembly that we may embody into a Church state."

"May 12, this Assembly do grant their consent and full liberty to the inhabitants of the village of East-Haven, in this colony, to embody themselves into a Church state, with the approbation of their neighbouring churches."

The care and solemnity with which they proceeded in preparing for that transaction is worthy of notice.

April 25th, 1710. "Upon some considerations about setting up the worship and ordinances of Christ in this place, and in order to a suitable attendance upon so great and weighty a worke, the village made choice of, and desired sundry persons, whose names are underwritten, as a Committee, to take advice and search for the right way, as near as may be ascertained, to prosecute the aforesaid worke, under hopes of the blessing of God to accompany and succeed such a worke for soul good to us, and ours after us, to many generations." The persons chosen for this object were, William Luddington, Thomas Goodsell, Lieut. John Russell, George Pardee, Caleb Chedsey, Sergt. John Poter, and Daniel Collins.

With such views the Church was gathered and constituted a Congregational Church; and became a member of the Consociation of New-Haven county; that body having been organized, according to Saybrook Platform, in 1709.

The Church was gathered on the 8th Oct. 1711, and Mr. Heminway was ordained Pastor of the Church the same day. But unhappily no Church Record can be found of the transactions of that day, nor of the affairs of the Church until 1755. It however appears, that Caleb Chedsey was one of the 1st Deacons; he died in 1713. Joshua Austin was Deacon in 1718. And be and Thomas Smith were both Deacons at the time of Mr. Street's ordination, but were then very aged. To them succeeded Deodate Davenport and Daniel Hitchcock—then Samuel and Abraham Heminway—then Amos Morris, Stephen Smith, Samuel Davenport, John Morris, and Levi Pardee.

When Mr. Heminway commenced his labours, the village had no meeting-house. But at a meeting, June 10th, 1706, "The Village agreed to build, 20 feet long, 16 feet wide, and 17 feet between joints, and set it across the east end of the School House." William Luddington and John Russell were overseers of the work, and were allowed 3s. 6d. per day, other men 3s. and team 6s. This house served them until the year 1719, when they erected another house on the hill, or "Note," the northwest corner of the Green, where the road is now laid. So early as the year 1714, the Village "voted to build a meeting-house 30 by 40 feet, 20 feet high, and jutted one foot at each end, with a strait roof." And the next year, they voted a sixpenny rate for the expense. In 1718 they began the house. Capt. John Russell, Nathaniel Hitchcock, Abraham Heminway and Samuel Hotchkiss, were the building Committee. And the next year they were charged "to hurry the work." The form of the seats and the pulpit were to be like those of Branford meeting-house: and a pew was to be built for the Ministry. Wages from the 10th Sept. to the 10th March, to be 2s. 6d.; and the rest of the year 3s. team 5s. Indian corn 2s. 6d.

The house being sufficiently advanced to occupy, the 19th Oct. 1719, the Village met and "voted that the new Meeting-house should be seated:—that the first short seat should be reckoned equal with the second long seat and so on:—that Mr. Shepard, Mr. Tuttle, and William Luddington, should sit in the first short seat. And old Mrs. Heminway, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Denison and Mrs. Smith, shall sit in the first seat of the square body. Mr. Pardee, Mr. Morris, Capt. Russell, Sergt. John Thompson, Samuel Russell, and Samuel Clark, shall sit in the fore seat of the square body. And these six men are chosen to seat the rest of the meeting-house, or the major part of them to do it, according to their rates in 1717, and that by Monday next ensuing."

About 30 years afterwards, the meeting-house wanting repairs, it was motioned to build a new house; but they continued to repair the old one for about fifty years, when they began the erection of the stone house. In the mean time the people growing remiss concerning the wood with which they had stipulated to supply Mr. Heminway, they voted to give him £50 in lieu of wood, provided it was not delivered in a specified time, for which they would be allowed 3s. per load.

20th Feb. 1722. "Voted, that Mr. Heminway shall have a piece of land for pasturing, adjoining to the west end of his home lot, as it is set out by Deacon Austin, Thomas Alcock and William Bradley. He to have the use of said land, so long as he shall continue in the worke of the Ministry amongst us in this place, he paying to the Village one shilling per year, yearly, so long as he improves said land for pasturing. The bounds of the land set out by the aforesaid three men, is about 13 rods on the Southend, on the westerly side 17 rods, and northerly 10 rods."

In Jan. 1737, they voted to sell the Parsonage, and constitute a permanent fund with the avails. This measure, however, was opposed, and John Heminway, Joseph Grannis, Samuel Russell; Matthew Rowe, John Dawson, Moses Thompson, James Denison, Isaac Peufield, Samuel Smith, and Isaac Howe, entered their protest against selling the Parsonage land.

In 1752, "Voted that Mr. Heminway shall name the Psalm in public, Nathaniel Barnes shall tune the Psalm, and in his absence Jacob or Isaac Goodsell."

Mr. Heminway continued in the Ministry 50 years, and died 7th Oct. 1754, in the 71st year of his age.

In March, 1755, Mr. Nicholas Street was invited to preach for the Society on probation, with the consent of the Rev. Association.

"At a Society meeting, 5th July, 1755, voted unanimously to give Mr. Street a call to settle in the worke of the Gospel ministry with us, and appointed a Committee to treat with him on the subject." And in Aug. "Voted, that we will give Mr. Street for his settlement amongst us, £1500 money, Old Tenor; to pay £500 in one year; £500 in two years, and £500 in three years. And if he changes his principles from what he was settled upon, then he shall return the £1500 in money, to the Society." This was equal to about £126 proclamation money.

"Voted to give Mr. Street for his yearly salary £60, in New-York money, dollars at 8s. or any other money equivalent thereunto, for the first year; sixty-five in the same money for the second year, and seventy in the same money for the third year, and so to continue yearly so long as the said Mr. Street shall preach with us.'

"Voted, also, that Mr. Street shall have the use of that piece of parsonage land by the two springs, three years after he is ordained." "Voted, also, that Mr. Street shall have the use of the two biggest pieces of land, so long as he shall continue in the work of the Ministry amongst us." At the same meeting Mr. Street personally appeared, and accepted of the aforesaid proposal. And was ordained by the Consociation of New-Haven County, 8th Oct. 1755.

In 1768, the Society again voted to sell all the Parsonage lands and give Mr. Street £80 salary. The next year, 30th Jan. 1769, "Voted to sell all the parsonage lands. The monies arising and accruing to the said Society from the sale of said lands shall be kept as a fund for the support of a regular Calvinistic Ministry, upon Saybrook Platform, especially as to the doctrines thereof, in East Haven; and that the interest of said fund shall annually be paid to such a ministry and no other, according to the original intention in the sequestration of said lands." The sales amounted to £390 9s. 9d. In 1779, it became convenient for some of the purchasers to make payment in the depreciated Continental Bills, when they were already reduced four to one, i.e. one dollar was worth only 25 cents in silver. A vote of the Society was obtained to call in the money; and thus all that fund sunk in their hands to about £300!! For the sake of this fund, Mr. Street had previously relinquished the parsonage and his wood, and accepted of £80 salary.

The same year the Society voted to build a new meeting-house. And in voting where it should stand, 37 votes appeared for the Green, and 27 for the end of Mullen Hill. A large Committee was then appointed to fix upon the place; but they could not agree. The next year, they chose Capt. Eliakim Hall, Col. Chauncey, and James Wadsworth, a Committee for that purpose, who met, and their doings were reported to the Court. But the people were not yet satisfied. The same result attended another Committee in March 1771. In Dec. of the same year, they tried another vote: when 20 votes appeared for the Green, 2 for Thompson's corner, and 29 for the end of the hill. Being convinced that they should not agree, in Feb. 1772, they voted to apply to the County Court, and request that two of the Judges and another man be of the Committee. They met and fixed the stake on Thompson's corner. In this decision the Society acquiesced, and began to make preparations to build.
The end of the hill was the centre of the Society, and nearly in the centre of the population, north and south. The Green would be more convenient for the south and east part of the society. The Southend people had to go round by the Cove and come out on the Green. The road was crooked, long, and some part of the way very uncomfortable. The present road from the meeting-house to Southend was laid out after that period.

John Woodward, Amos Morris and Stephen Morris, and afterwards Stephen Thompson, Joel Tuttle, and Stephen Smith, were of the building Committee. Isaac Chedsey and Dan Bradley were chosen in 1774. "27th April, 1772, Voted to build a stone house 60 feet long, and to lay a six-penny rate for it." The Committee were authorized to purchase the land of John Thompson, and pay for it out of that rate. The house was begun without a steeple, but a few enterprising men were determined to have one, and finally obtained a Society vote for it, and also to add eight feet to the length. The outside of the walls now measure 70 feet by 50, exclusive of the steeple. In 1773 and 4, the walls were raised and covered. The seats were then removed from the old house into the new, and public worship commenced in it in Sept. 1774. The finishing of the house was suspended for several years.

It was a great and honorable work, and there stands as a lasting monument of the enterprise, public spirit, wisdom and perseverance of the undertakers, and especially of the leaders. It was a cheaper building than one of wood:—They had stone and lime, and teams and laborers enough to do the work. A stone house saved them money.—The papers containing the accounts of the building are lost, and the expense of it cannot now be ascertained. But it is supposed that when they began to meet in it, it had cost ten or eleven thousand dollars. The steeple and inside of the house were finished several years afterwards. For the war coming on, nothing could be done. Indeed, the society has never seen a more favorable period for this great work. They were then united as one people. And the society, probably, never contained a company of men of more enterprise or greater resolution and public spirit, than that generation contained. The Revolutionary war commenced the next year. And when that war was terminated, divisions began to appear, and have considerably diminished the active ability of the society to perform such a work again—and in a few years a number of those influential and enterprising men were removed by death. And though there is yet a considerable portion of wealth in the society, it is not accompanied with the same resolution and enterprise which the Fathers possessed.—But it ought to be considered, that the hand of the Lord was in the work. The time had come when the "Lord's house should be built," and then men and means were prepared to execute the work of the Lord, and fulfil the divine purpose. "Except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it.") And when the work was done, the people had occasion to say, "the Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

A serious calamity, however, befell the builders. The workmen were raising the last window cap, on the back side, when the scaffold gave way, and three men with the stone in their arms fell to the ground. Toney was considerably injured, but in two weeks was so much recovered that he ran away. Mr. Stephen Thompson had his skull fractured, was trepanned, and after much suffering, recovered. Mr. Joseph Hotchkiss had one leg crushed by the stone, passed through ten months of suffering, but was finally raised to comfortable health, and is yet alive.

The society resumed the work of finishing the house in 1791, for which they laid a tax of one penny half penny. The work was accomplished, and the house was put into good order; but was greatly damaged by a dreadful tornado, Oct. 8th, 1797, between 6 and 7 o'clock on the evening of the Lord's day. The repairs of the house cost the society about one thousand dollars.

Mr. Street having a large family, and a small salary, and having gone through the distresses of the war on a depreciated currency; in 1787, petitioned the society for relief. After some debate about it, twenty pounds, by vote, were added to his salary. With this grant a few men were extremely displeased, and some having been displeased on some other account, they united with a few Episcopalians then in the town, and formed an Episcopal society. The following document will exhibit the date and form of that transaction:

"East-Haven, 31st March, 1788. At a meeting of the Episcopal Society of the Church of England, so called, legally warned, at the house of Mr. Samuel Tuttle, in said East-Haven, at 2 o'clock P.M. on Monday, 31st March, 1788; the subscribers, members of said Church or Society, under the kind patronage of the Rev. Bela Hubbard, Rector of Trinity Church, of New-Haven, being present, who willingly and cheerfully accepted us under his care and patronage, proceeded to the usual and necessary business of choosing the needful and customary parish officers in said Society of East-Haven. Accordingly, voted John Bird to be Clerk of said Society; and being duly sworn, upon the oath of fidelity and oath of office, according to law—also voted, Capt. Samuel Barnes, Moderator, John Bird, Clerk, Samuel Tuttle, James Pardee, Church Wardens;—Jehiel Forbes, Capt. Samuel Barnes, Samuel Thompson, Capt. Stephen Thompson, Jun. Ichabod Bishop, Vestrymen. At the same time voted for five Vestrymen, but that only three shall be a quorum, with full power and authority, as the five by vote elected.”

“Let this certify all whom it may concern, that I was present at the above-mentioned meeting, and that the above-mentioned persons were approved of in their several respective offices to which they were appointed.

Witness my hand, 31st day of March, 1788.

BELA HUBBARD,
Rector of Trinity Church, New-Haven.”

The next year they erected their Church house; at the raising of which, through some injudicious management, the frame fell, and killed Jeremiah Bradley, and several others were much injured.

The Rev. Mr. Street died 8th Oct. 1806, in the 77th year of his age, having just completed the 51st year of his Ministry. He and Mr. Heminway served the Congregation 101 years.

CHAP. VI.

SCHOOLS AND EDUCATION.

THERE is no account of Schools on record, until the beginning of the last century. Their deficiency, in regard to even a common education, was very great. Some of their public men,—men who sustained various offices and appointments of trust, were unable to write their names.—Their mark is made at the bottom of several instruments on record. Experience taught them the necessity of paying more attention to the education of their children.

13th Jan. 1707, a Committee was appointed at a Village meeting, "to see after the schools, and agree with a man to keep school in East-Haven, to teach children to read and write." The Committee accordingly agreed with Mr. Heminway to take charge of the school.

In 1728 the Village was divided into four Districts, and the public money into as many parts, according to the number of children over 5 and under 15 years of age. The next year they agreed to employ a school-master, as near the middle of the village as was convenient. Some part of the time at South-end, and some part at Foxon's, according to the number of children from 8 to 18 years of age. In 1732, it was fixed between 6 and 16—At that time Foxon district included all the families north of the Bloomery brook, and a line running west to Claypit brook. A school was begun in Dragon district, 1730.

The first school-house was on the "Green, or Market place." And afterwards east of the present meeting-house. One stood on the hill near Matthew Moulthrop's house, west of Foxon: and in 1767, one was built a little north of Bloomery brook.

In 1742 the school-money was divided thus: Two thirds for the schools below the Bloomery brook, and one third north of that line, and so west, over to Nanny Capel's brook. Foxon district was then very thrifty and populous, but has since declined in wealth and population.

In 1743, "It was voted that the Southend children shall have their proportion of the school money, from the age of 4 to 18." In 1769, the Village was divided into six school districts. The public school money was derived from the sale of the public lands in Litchfield County.

Though the people of this town have been favoured for more than a century with a College at their door, they have not availed themselves of that advantage, to give their sons a public education. Only six have enjoyed that privilege—viz:

Jacob Heminway, graduated 1704

A few years since, a Library Company was formed, and gathered about 75 or 80 volumes; but for seven years past no regard has been paid to it, by the appointment of the proper officers. Several attempts have been made to obtain a meeting of the company, but have failed!

CHAPTER VII.

Population—Taxable Property and Taxes.

THE only data on which we can ascertain the population of East-Haven, for about one hundred and fifty years after its first settlement, is the scale by which the division of land was made; and this, so far as it goes, may be considered generally accurate.

In 1683, there were 20 families within the bounds of the Village, and 121 polls, which is six to a family, and one over. Besides these, there were five unmarried men, and one widow, which makes the population of that year 127.

In 1702, there were 32 families, and 192 polls, which gives the proportion of six to a family; besides eight unmarried persons who drew lots for themselves;—whole number 200: which makes an increase of 73 in 19 years.

In 1709, there were 33 families, and 200 polls, exclusive of 10 single persons who drew lots for themselves;—making 210. Beside these there were five families at Southend, who did not at this time draw lots of land. If we allow six to a family for them, the population will be 240. There were a few tenants and servants who are not included in this number; and with that addition, the population might amount to 270 persons.
Population—Property and Taxes.

In 1754, there were 61 freemen. Some of these were old men, and had small families; and doubtless there were some men who had families, and who were not freemen.—If we reckon the number of families at 70, and allow six persons to a family, the souls will be 420. The population in 1754 did not, probably, exceed 500 souls; for in the years 1736, ’42, ’43, 73 children died, and 29 adult persons, some of whom were heads of young families.

In 1769, there were 64 voters in a society meeting, respecting the place where the new Meeting-House should stand. On that occasion, doubtless nearly all the voters in the society attended.

The regular census of the United States affords an accurate view of the population of the town at four equi-distant periods. The official returns stand thus:

| 1790, 1025 persons. | 1810, 1209 persons. |
| 1800, 1004 | 1820, 1237 |

There are at this time, 1824, about 200 families in the town, which, according to the census of 1820, contain upon an average more than six to a family.

Taxes.—The amount of the Grand List in East-Haven, in 1683, was £1794 00 00.

| 1702 | 2550 00 00 |
| 1709 | 2397 00 00 |

The valuation amount of property for the United States direct tax, in 1815, was $351,225: property in other towns, $2426. 1504 dollars were deducted. The amount of tax was $1006 22. In 1816, the amount of valuation was $373,703: Property of non-residents deducted, $22,918: leaving $350,785. The tax on this sum was 133½ mills per cent. which raised $470 95.

The state of property will further appear, from the annexed list for the year 1785, when East-Haven became a Town:

| 140 Polls between 21 and 70, | £2520 00 |
| 38 Polls between 16 and 21, | 342 00 |

The Town has, for several years, voted from 3 to 3 ¼ cents tax to defray the current expenses of the Town—and from 1 to 2 cents for the repair of the roads.
IN the French war of 1755, a number of men were drafted from East-Haven for the English army near the Lakes, and the greater part of them were lost by sickness and battle. Of these I have obtained the following names, viz. Jacob Moulthrop, David Moulthrop, Adonijah Moulthrop, Jacob Robinson, Benjamin Robinson, Thomas Robinson, jun. David Potter, John Mallory, Abraham Jocelin, Samuel Hotchkiss, James Smith, Samuel Russel and Stephen Russel, brothers, and Asa Luddington. Benjamin Russel was captured at sea.

In the war of Independence, which began 19th April, 1775, the following persons were lost.—In 1776, Elijah Smith was killed in battle upon Long-Island; Thomas Smith conducted a fire ship to the enemy, but was badly burnt, and the attending boat having left him too soon, he had to swim ashore, where he was found three days after, in a helpless state; he was brought over to Rye, and there he died.—Nathan Andrews died a prisoner. In 1777, Isaac Potter perished in the prison-ship. The 5th July, 1779, Isaac Pardee was killed on Grave or Fort hill, by a cannon shot. In October, on board a privateer, Zabulon Bradley was killed; Richard Paul, Jacob Pardee, jun. Asa Bradley, Abijah Bradley, and Elijah Bradley, were made prisoners, and all, except the last, perished in the prison ship at New-York, the following winter. In 1780, Medad Slaughter died in the prison-ship. In 1781, John Howe was killed by the Tories when they surprised Fort Hale. John Walker was killed upon Long-Island.

Thus twelve young men were lost; and several men returned from captivity so injured by hard usage, that they pined away and died, particularly Edward Goodsell, Isaac Luddington and Jared Heminway.

On the 4th July, 1779, the enemy intending to capture New-Haven, landed a covering force on Morris' Neck and Southend, and marched directly to Tuttle's hill, where they encamped that night, and the next day re-embarked. They were led by the Tories. In this invasion they burnt most of the buildings within their reach, and made the rebel Whigs feel the effects of Royal British vengeance.

To meet these losses, and those of other Towns of a similar nature, in May, 1792, the General Assembly of Connecticut passed an act appropriating "500,000 acres of land west of Pennsylvania, for the relief of the sufferers by fire."
The damage in each Town was assessed, and the amount of each person's loss in East-Haven was as follows:

Equal to $13,848 24.

They burnt eleven dwelling houses, nine barns and some other out buildings. Gurdon Bradley lost £66 00 00 in a sloop that was burnt. The enemy and the militia plundered the inhabitants of all they could carry off. The whole of this loss was collected by the Commissioners appointed for this purpose, and the amount was £421 1 4. The entire loss of East-Haven by this invasion, in property, was $15,-

CHAP. IX.

Natural History—Tornado and Curiosities.

THE Town of East-Haven contains about nine thousand acres of land. The soil is generally light and sandy; but capable of yielding good crops when properly cultivated. It is congenial to Indian Corn and Barley. In favourable seasons, potatoes do well. In some parts of the Town Rye succeeds, but is very subject to blast and rust. By good husbandry the lands may be made more productive; though unhappily there is very little good pasturage in the Town. There is very little clay, and some parts of the Town are encumbered and disfigured with rocks and ragged barren hills.
Natural History, &c.

About the first Spring, or the head of Bloomery Brook, and the head of Clay-pit Brook, and along the intervale of Stony River, good brick clay may be obtained. Some of the best land lies in the Fresh Meadows and Cove Swamp, which are now uncultivated and unproductive. Were those low lands drained, as they probably will be at some future period, they would be the most productive lands in the Town.

Along the sea-shore, there is a range of Granite rock of the purest kind, but it is not found in any other part of the Town. The Pond Rock and the ridge west of it are Green or Whinstone. The same kind of Rock appears in detached eminences and ridges, in some other parts of the Town. Sand-stone of the secondary formation, commences on the Indian land north-east from the Cove, and running north, spreads through Dragon woods, and terminates on the Davenport farm. Another mass lies on the east side of the Fresh Meadows, and runs in a north-east direction to the north line of the town, on the half mile. The Green-stone, generally, on the surface, is in such a state of fracture, as to be nearly useless, except the smaller fragments, which make excellent gravel for roads. In some places the sand stone is in a state of decomposition. In the ridge north of Mullen Hill, Agates are found in abundance.

The plains appear to be composed of sand, coarse and fine, washed from the lands and vallies on the north, and accumulating gradually by some powerful operating cause. The salt marshes are founded upon a bottom of sand like that of the plains adjacent.

The Town is well supplied with water of an excellent quality. There are numerous Springs and some fine Rivulets; while Stoney River and the Furnace Pond afford an inexhaustible supply of water of the best kind.

The Pond is about three miles long, and from one hundred yards to three hundred broad, and very deep.

The fisheries in the waters of East-Haven are excellent and valuable. In Quinipiac River, oysters are taken in vast quantities, and those of a superior quality are taken in the Cove and Stony River.

Clams, black and white fish, abound in their season. White fish are used, in vast quantities, for manure.

The trade in oysters is carried to a great extent. From sixty to an hundred thousand bushels, are annually imported. These are opened, put up into small kegs, and dispersed all over the northern and western country, quite into Canada. The amount of sales for this Town and vicinity is estimated at twenty-five thousand dollars during the fall and winter season. And it sometimes probably exceeds that sum.

A considerable number of the men are employed in the coasting, packet, and oyster trade. But this town has suffered exceedingly by the loss of active men at sea. Farming business occupies the attention of the principal part of the male population.

On the 8th October, 1797, great damage was done by a Tornado, which passed over the centre of the Town. The same week, the following account of it was published in a New-Haven paper.

"On Sunday evening last, between six and seven o'clock, we experienced a violent gale of wind from the westward, attended with heavy rain and thunder. The damage done in this town was not great, compared with that done at East-Haven and Branford.

"The roofs of some buildings were injured, the tops of chimneys blown off, and windows blown in, some trees and fences blown down, and a barn in the New Township removed from its foundation. At East-Haven the steeple of the meeting-house was blown down, which falling on the roof, broke through the side, where it fell, leaving only one rafter standing, and penetrating the floor, greatly damaged the seats. A large new house was removed from its foundation; several dwelling houses were partly and others entirely unroofed. A number of barns met the same fate. Three large barns were entirely demolished; the materials of which they were built were scattered in every direction. The town of Branford experienced nearly the same fate. Part of the roof of the meeting-house was blown off, and all the windows on the western side destroyed; six or seven houses, a new store and several barns, unroofed, other barns blown down, the trees in several fine orchards laid prostrate. The height of the tornado continued but a few minutes. We have not learnt all the particulars of this disastrous gale, nor how far the storm extended."

The same Tornado is described in Dwight's Travels, with the addition of several particulars to the above account.

"On Lord's day, October 8, 1797, in the afternoon, a Tornado, the commencement of which, so far as I was able to learn, was at Upper Salem in the County of Westchester and State of New-York, passed over Ridgefield, in Con-Salt Storm—1821.

Connecticut, and thence over Redding, Newtown, Huntington, Derby, Woodbridge, New-Haven, East-Haven, Branford, Guilford, and Killingworth; whence it directed its course over the Sound. At times it rose from the earth, and held its most furious career in a higher region of the atmosphere. Such was the fact at New-Haven, where, although its force was great, it did not blow with sufficient strength to do any material damage. At Upper Salem, it destroyed orchards, groves, and buildings. At East-Haven it blew down the steeple of the Presbyterian Church, and ruined several other buildings. It left many marks of its violence also at Branford, and some other places; while in others it did little or no mischief. This alternate rise and fall of a Tornado, I have not seen mentioned; nor do I remember a storm of this kind, at so late a season, in any other instance."

Another violent gale, called by some the Salt Storm, occurred on the 3d Sept. 1821. Light showers passed in the morning; it was somewhat misty through the day, with a light rain about 5 o'clock P. M. The wind rising about that hour, it having been all day about south and south-east.—At 6 o'clock it became a gale, still increasing and blowing with dreadful violence until 11 o'clock, when it broke, and a calm succeeded. In this town very little rain fell; but in the region about New-York, a vast quantity poured down. The sand and gravel, however, were scooped from the earth and dashed against every opposing object. A salt spray covered every thing within its reach, and mingling with the dirt then afloat, rendered the glass windows quite opaque, and formed a coat so firm, that it was not easily washed off.

The morning light disclosed a scene of mournful devastation, among the vegetable kingdom. Trees of every kind were stripped of their foliage, and also of their fruit. The small limbs upon the windward side were killed, and still exhibit the deadly properties of the storm; and along the coast the fruit trees are rendered barren. Many small trees were destroyed. The shrubbery and the vegetation of the garden and the field, appeared as is common after a severe and early frost. The atmosphere was loaded with a very nauseous fetor. The buckwheat was completely destroyed; the corn lay prostrate, the leaves of which were whipped into small strings. The weather afterwards being very warm, the trees and living shrubbery put forth new leaves, and the fruit trees and the lilac were adorned with flowers.
Curiosities.

The deadly effects of the salt on vegetation might be traced twelve or fifteen miles inland; but gradually diminishing according to the distance from the shore. It having been a very dry season in this town, and the ground being very hard, but few trees were overturned, compared with what took place a few miles north, where the ground was softer, and there great havoc was made among the tall timber.

A singular phenomenon of frequent occurrence is noticeable in this town, respecting the motion of thunder clouds proceeding from the west. The cloud advances over the harbour, and approaches Fort Hill, presenting a great, and in a dry season, a hopeful appearance of a refreshing rain. But presently it breaks, and then separates to the right and left; one part passing to the north of the village, and the other part passing down the harbour and across the south end of the town, pours down its refreshing streams upon the Sound. And sometimes no rain at all falls upon the plains east of the hill, and at other times only a sprinkling from the skirts of the cloud. Whether the hill possesses a repulsive, or the water an attractive quality, that operates upon the cloud, is a question left to the wisdom of the reader to solve.

The town affords a few curiosities. On an island in Stony River, there is a regular cavity cut into the Granite Rock, and called the Indian Well. It is from twenty-six to thirty-three inches diameter, and very smooth, especially the bottom of it. It is now about five feet in depth, but formerly it was deeper. When the dam below was built, some part of the rock was removed, and much injured its natural appearance. The water on both sides of the island passes through a narrow channel of Granite Rock. I have seen similar excavations in the beds of the Mohawk River below the Cohoes falls, which were evidently formed by sand and pebbles, set into action by the rotatory motion of the water. Such cavities are common near the falls of Rivers. The Indian well was, doubtless, produced by the attrition of the sand and pebbles which passed over this rock, it being then in or near the bed of the River. The bottom of the River was then from eight to twelve feet above the present high water mark, the valley on the north being once a considerable lake, and connected with the Furnace pond. A great change has evidently passed over the land and marsh in that vicinity. Stumps and the fragments of trees lie in the bed and banks of the River. The marsh has but a small depth, and lies on a bed of sand. Some fragments of Indian manufacture, and other articles, have been thrown up in ditching the marsh.

On the land of William Woodward, and a few rods west of his barn, is a rock of Greenstone, resting in a few places, over a cavity, upon a ridge of Sandstone. The under side of the rock is very smooth. Its mean height is about five feet and a half, and its length and breadth is about eight feet. The top of it is flat. There is no other rock of the kind in that neighborhood. Is this rock of Celtic origin?—Its size and peculiar position resembles that of other rocks in this country which have been the subjects of scientific speculation.

Another rock, of Sandstone, somewhat similar to the other, not so high, but having a longer table, is on a hill of considerable elevation, west of Bridge Swamp. It originally rested on the apex, like an inverted cone, but now reclines towards the South. From this situation there is a charming view of the Sound and the surrounding country.

The great burying place of the Indian Tribes in this Town and vicinity, is on the north end of the hill on which the Fort stands, which, anciently, in allusion to this place, was called Grave Hill. Some of the graves have been levelled by the plow, but many of them are yet visible. In the year 1822, I examined three of these graves. At the depth of about three feet and a half the sand stone appears, on which the bodies were laid, without any appearance of a wrapper or enclosure. They all lay in the direction of south-west and north-east—the head towards the west. Of two of them, the arms lay by the side; the other had the arms across the body, after the manner of the white people. The large bones and teeth were in a sound state. The thigh bones of one measured 19 inches in length, the leg bone 18, and the arm from the elbow to the shoulder 13. By measuring the skeleton as it lay, it was concluded to be that of a man of six and a half feet high. No article of any description appeared with the bones. It is said, that about 50 or 60 years ago some of these graves were opened, and a number of Indian implements, of the kitchen and of war, were found in them. Few Indians have been buried there within a century past.

The Indians had a Fort on the hill in the burying ground, and from that circumstance it was called Fort Hill. It is also a tradition that they had another on the hill north of Daniel Hughes' house, and near the old ferry road. The appearance of shells shows that they had a village on that spot: The same indications appear in the woods of South-end Neck, west of the sluice. Great quantities of oyster shells are collected among the rocks and in the little valleys, and on the banks of the River, showing the places where their weekwams stood.

It was stated in the first chapter of this history that Thomas Gregson, who settled at Solitary Cove, and several others, on a voyage to England, were lost at sea. That affair is noticed by Dr. Mather, in his Magnalia, with an account of the apparition of a ship, contained in a letter to him from the Rev. James Pierpont, Pastor of the Church at New-Haven, successor to Mr. Street, and who was settled there 2d July, 1683. As the loss of Mr. Gregson was a calamity to the early settlement of East-Haven, I conclude that this account may be introduced into this work with propriety. It is a singular affair, and will be amusing to most of the readers. I insert it without any comment, leaving every reader to make what speculations he pleases concerning it.

"Behold, a fourth colony of New-English Christians, in a manner stolen into the world, and a colony, indeed, constellated with many stars of the first magnitude. The colony was under the conduct of as holy, and as prudent and as genteel men, as most that ever visited these nooks of America: and yet these too were tried with very humbling circumstances.

"Being Londoners, or merchants and men of traffic and business, their design was in a manner wholly to apply themselves unto trade; but the design failing, they found their great estates sink so fast, that they must quickly do something. Whereupon, in the year 1646, gathering together almost all the strength which was left them, they built one ship more, which they freighted for England, with the best part of their tradeable estates: and sundry of their eminent persons embarked themselves in her for the voyage. But, alas, the ship was never after heard of!—She foundered at sea; and in her were lost, not only the hopes of their future trade, but also the lives of several excellent persons, as well as divers manuscripts of some great men in the country, sent over for the service of the Church, which were now buried in the ocean. The fuller story of that grievous matter, let the reader with a just astonishment accept from the pen of the Reverend person, who is now the Pastor of New-Haven. I wrote unto him for it, and was thus answered.

"Reverend and Dear Sir——.

"In compliance with your desires, I now give you the relation of that apperition of a ship in the air, which I have received from the most credible, judicious, and curious surviving observers of it.

"In the year 1647, besides much other lading, a far more rich treasure of passengers (five or six of which were persons of chief note and worth in New-Haven,) put themselves on board a new ship, built at Rhode-Island, of about 150 tons; but so watty, [crank.] that the master (Lamberton) often said she would prove their grave. In the month of January, cutting their way through much ice, on which they were accompanied with the Rev. Mr. Davenport, besides many other friends, with many fears, as well as prayers and tears, they set sail. Mr. Davenport, in prayer, with an observable emphasis, used these words, Lord, if it be thy pleasure to bury these dear friends in the bottom of the sea, they are thine, save them?" The spring following, no tidings of these friends arrived with the ships from England; New-Haven's heart began to fail her; this put the godly people on much prayer, both public and private, that the Lord would (if it was his pleasure) let them hear what he had done with their dear friends, and prepare them with a suitable submission to his Holy Will. In June next ensuing, a great thunder storm arose out of the north-west; after which, (the hemisphere being serene) about an hour before sun-set, a SHIP, of like dimensions with the aforesaid, with her canvas and colours abroad, (though the wind northerly,) appeared in the air, coming up from our harbour's mouth, which lies southward of the Towne, seemingly with her sails filled under a fresh gale, holding her course north, and continuing under observation, sailing against the wind, for the space of half an hour.

"Many were drawn to behold this great work of God; yea, the very children cryed out, There's a brave ship!—— At length, crowding up as far as there is usually water sufficient for such a vessel, and so near some of the spectators as that they imagined a man might hurl a stone on board her, her main top seemed to be blown off, but left hanging in the shrouds; then her mizen top; then all her masting seemed blown away by the board; quickly after the hulk brought unto a careen, she overset, and so vanished into a smoaky cloud, which in some time dissipated, leaving, as every where else, a clear air. The admiring spectators could distinguish the several colours of each part, the principal rigging, and such proportions, as caused not only the generality of persons to say, This was the mould of their ship, and thus was her tragic end; but Mr. Davenport also in public declared to this effect, That God had condescended, for the quieting of their afflicted spirits, this extraordinary account of his sovereign disposal of those for whom so many fervent prayers were made continually.

Thus I am, Sir, Your humble servant,

JAMES PIERPONT.”

CHAP. X.

Roads and Public Lands.

WHEN Thomas Morris, in 1671, bought the little Neck, a four rod road was reserved, in his deed, “from the Cove to Fowler’s Creek, in the way to Southend.”

In 1673, the Southend men and George Pardoe, paid the Indian George, Sagamore, twelve shillings for a road of one rod from the Cove to the country road.

In 1692, “On Motion made by the Southend men in reference to the highway through the Indian land, it was voted, that Thomas Trowbridge, sergt. Winstone, John Potter and sergt. Cooper, or any three of them, be a Committee to state out and settle the way formerly used, as described by the Town’s former order. And they are to inform themselves by such as know how the way went in times past, or ought to go, and make return to the Town of what they do; also that they treat with the Indians, to settle matters lovingly with them.” This vote was executed as follows:

“NEW-HAVEN, 10th June, 1692.

“Whereas there was a former agreement between New-Haven Towne and the Indians, for a highway through the Indian field to George Pardee’s land, yet for peace sake with the Inhabitants of Southend, and George Pardee have given to George the Sagamore, twelve shillings in money, for which, I the underwritten do ratify and confirm the same and do grant the same highway to be on record, beginning, at the dirty Swamp by the Iron worke path, which was Mr. Gregson's land, for which I do further engage that there shall be but two pare of barrs or gates throughout my land to George Pardee's, which I the foresaid Sagamore George will make and maintain forever, and do further engage myself, my heirs, to secure the same highway to them, their heirs and assigns forever from me, my assigns, or any from or under me. As witness my hand and seal—dated as above.

In December, 1727, "It was voted that the two rod highway laid out through the new Indian field on the east side, and running through the same, and established by the Committee to dispose of said land, one rod whereof was purchased by the Southend people of the Indians, be and remain an highway forever,"—[Pro. Records.]

27th December, 1686. "And the road or way to the Ferry through the Neck to continue where it now is, and from the Ferry on the East side, the way to be continued where it is, four rods wide to Stoney River, and the end of our bounds Branfordward."—[Pro. Record.]

"And the Highway to be continued where it was, and that is from Old Ferry Point at the place called the Stables, four rods wide. And from the way that leadeth to Stoney River Farmes the highway to be continued where or near where it is as may be, leading to the sea at Solitary Cove, lying between the sea and the proprietors there, and so to go on where it doth over the little or Morris' Neck unto Southend Farmes."

"And also a road or highway from Stoney River Farmes to the Bogmine plaine, where it is, or lately was, when Bogmine was carted to the Iron workes, and from the said Bogmine plain, onwards upon the plaines, near where it lieth to the end of our Town Bounds towards Wallingford."

"Also a highway from the last mentioned highway beginning at the Southernmost run of water that runs into Mr. Davenport's Cove, to be continued unto the River near the Roads and Public Lands.

Ferry below Dragon point, and upon the bank by the River side, between the lots that are or may be."

"And also a highway at first laid out from Stoney River home lots and houses, of a good breadth, to be continued between the fields or lots and the meadows or swamp leading to Solitary Cove; not to be encroached upon. The above ordered to be recorded."—[Pro. Record.]

"Here followeth the record of the highway in the third division according as the Sizers and Surveyor gave a description of them in writing.

"Also upon the east side of the East River a highway is allowed from the bridge on the East River to the commons in Widow Howe's lot."

"Also a highway at the rear of those lots that come up unto Branford line that was, beginning at Hercules' meadow, to run into Wharton's brook."

"Also a highway at the West end of those lots that come to Branford line that was, and is a division of lots that are on Hercules' plaine."

"All which ways are allowed four rods wide, only that in Widow Howe's lot from the bridge is six rods wide. Also those highways are to be where the ground will allow, and not to be compelled to run strait. Also a high-way allowed to run from the bridge on the East River, by the River to Joseph Ford's land. And one highway from the Bogmine Wharffe up to the Country road."—[Pro. Record.]

Roads on and near the Pond Rock.

"23d March, 1715—The Pond Rock shall be laid out to the Proprietors which carried on the building of the Minister's house, and a highway to be laid out on the top of said Rock as shall be most convenient for that use, from the higher end, so to the end of our bounds, three rods wide. And there shall be a sufficient highway left between the said Rock and the River lots, so called, for the use of the Proprietors of the Rock and the River lots."—[E. H. Rec.]

"East-Haven, 18th April, 1710. We William Ludington, John Russel and Caleb Chedsey the Selectmen, considering the necessity of stating highways, do order, that the way between John Heminway's and John Miles', their home lot, shall be four rods wide, and along the like breadth, until you come to the Pumpkin lot. And so from the Southeast Corner of Joseph Tuttle's land on the one side and the Pumpkin lot on the other side, four rods wide untill you come to sergt. John Moulthrop's land, commonly called plains lot, on the northeast side, and a like breadth between the forementioned plains lot and John Luddington's lot and John Auger's land on the south west side, and so to continue as the road now is, until you come to the Indian field."

"As also a highway from the northwest corner of Mr. Thomas Goodsell's home lot on the one side, and on the northeast corner of Samuel Russel's land on the other side, four rods wide while you come to the South corner of Samuel Goodsell's land, and then all the undivided land between Samuel Goodsell's and John Howe's land, and so along until you come to the east side of John Heminway's land, and from thence as that land runs until you come to that land laid out for parsonage land, and from thence turn to the west between said parsonage and aforesaid Heminway's land until you come to the Indian land, and from thence southward till you come to George Pardee's land.

"As also a highway beginning at the Northeast corner of Lieut. John Russel's home lot, four rods wide between said home lot and other land of said Russel's, on the north side of it, and turning to the north-west, until you come to the said Russel's pasture. Samuel Russel's being on the south-west side of said highway, and from said pasture forementioned, turning southward and south-west along the undivided land until you come to the country road.—[E. H. Record.]

"20th December, 1710, Caleb Chedsey and Samuel Russel and Samuel Thompson, Selectmen, added as follows. As also from Matthew Moulthrop's home lot Westward of the River lots until you come to John Dawson's home lot of four rods wide."

"As also from Hall's Cartway on the west side of the bridge swamp to the country road four rods wide, between land of John and Abraham Heminway and land of John Howe's on the west, and land belonging to Daniel Collins and Samuel Goodsell's on the East."

"As also a highway of two rods wide on the west side of Moulthrop's plains lot, the whole length of said lot, till it comes to the road that leads to Southend."—E. H. Record.

"December 21, 1724. Voted that there be a continuance of a highway from Jonathan's Point through Mr. Davenport's farme and a corner of Capt. Ball's farme to the Country road as formerly, with a pare of bars, which such as have occasion, shall pass and re-pass, they having so done shall shut the said bars."—Pro. Record.
April, 1726. "Resolved, that a highway be continued from the highway already purchased of Mr. Pierpont through the half mile to the highway at Hitchcock's lot at Muddy River, the said highway to be four rods wide and to run as the land will allow to accommodate the same; through a highway from Wallingford line to the Southward, at the east end of the third division, till it intersect the highway abovementioned."—[Pro. Record.]

"At a Proprietors' Meeting held in East-Haven, 12th May, 1720, Mr. Jacob Heminway petitioned for a part of the Green next to the spring where the burying place is. Sergt. John Heminway protested against any part of the Green being taken up or disposed of for any other use than to lye common as it now lies. Voted that Mr. Heminway shall not have any part of the land.—Voted that the Green shall not be disposed of except it be for some public use, that it may be beneficial to the whole of the Proprietors."—[E. H. and N. H. Record.]

"March 23, 1726. 'Then laid out a highway beginn in at the South-east corner of the Orchard belonging to John Shepard, and north-east of the Country road that runs over the Bridge Swamp. Said Orchard is near the fresh meadow, four rods wide; and by land of Nathaniel Barnes, till it comes over Luddington's brook: then up the hill as the path runs, four rods wide untill it comes over the Vineyard brook; then up the hill as the path runs, four rods by Nathaniel Barnes' untill it comes to the said Barnes' East Corner. Then runs westerly eight rods; then down the hill to Isaac Howe's lot.'

THOMAS ALCOCK and } Com.,
JOHN RUSSEL,

[5th Jan. 1731. "We set off (between Mr. Davenport's and the Ferry to East-Haven) four rods westerly from the south-west corner of William Greenough's lot a little above the Cove, above the Ferry, run south 18 degrees east, 23 rods and 3 feet, to a large white oak; thence south 11 degrees and 30 minutes west, 13 rods, to a heap of stones.'"

"Then we set off another highway of 3 rods wide, to the line of the Indian land, to meet with a highway laid between the Ferry field and the said Indian land; then south 28° 30' east, 15 rods, to a heap of stones on the point of a rock; thence east 3° south, 39 rods and 5½ feet, to a heap of stones, four rods west of Peter Woodward's land."
"Then we laid out another highway out of this, west 33° south, 19 rods, to Joseph Tuttle's land, of four rods wide. Then we run from the aforesaid heap of stones east 15° 30' 24 rods, to a heap of stones in a wall, 6 1/2 rods from said Woodward's land. Then south 43° east, 18 rods, to a heap of stones on a point of rocks, 4 rods from said Woodward's land. Thence east 22° north, 24 rods. Thence east 30 1/2° north, 20 rods, to a heap of stones on a rock. Thence south 21° north, 12 rods. Thence south 34° north, 21 1/2 rods, to a white oak with stones at the root. Thence north 21° east, 50 rods, to a heap of stones. Thence north 30° east, 18 1/2 rods, to a red oak tree with stones at the root. Thence east 32° north, 23 1/2 rods, to a heap of stones. Thence 40° 1/2° east, 29 rods, to a walnut pole with stones at the root. Thence north 34° east, 33 rods, to John Rowe's south-east corner. Thence north 30° east, 51 rods, to said Rowe's northeast corner.

"Furthermore, we laid another highway, which comes across by and adjoining to the aforesaid highway, beginning at the country road which leads from East-Haven to New-Haven, where we measured for the highway four rods wide, out of the south side or end of Eleazar Brown's land, running westward 32 rods, and until we come to the aforesaid Rowe's north-east corner, where we measured for highway 8 1/2 rods in breadth, still running westward until we come over the swamp, and partly up the hill, to a point of rocks. Then beginning at 5 1/2 rods in width, and running southerly, continuing so until we come to the top of the hill; and from thence four rods in breadth until we come six rods southerly of Matthew Rowe's south-east corner of his Dragon lot; and two rods in Eleazar Brown's Dragon lot;—then turning westerly, beginning the highway six rods wide, running down hill 13 rods, narrowing gradually until said way be but four rods wide, so continuing the highway four rods wide between the said Rowe's and the said Brown's lot, until we come to the top of the hill, from where is the descent down to the bank of the river, where we set off for highway, besides the four rods out of said Brown's land, 8 1/2 rods, and continued to four rods westerly; thence 12 rods, to a point until the said way be but four rods wide, so continuing the highway four rods wide to said bank, between said Rowe's and said Brown's land. And for a recompense to Eleazar Brown, for what we took from his lot to accommodate the highway, we agreed, and laid out to him a corner of land, joining to the south-east part of his land at Dragon, bounded northerly 11½ rods by his own land, westerly 37¼ rods by his land at the south, and 8 rods in breadth, and easterly by common or undivided land, being in quantity two acres and fifty rods of land.

[Pro. Record.]

"At a meeting of the Village of East-Haven, 2d September, 1707, the Village made choice of Lieut. Russell, Samuel Thompson, and Thomas Smith, to see upon what terms they may agree with persons concerned for a cart highway through some of the River lots, and make report at the next meeting."

No report of this Committee appeared at the next meeting, nor have I been able to find any proceedings on this subject until 12th January, 1747, on which day the Village meeting "Voted, that Moses Thompson, Matthew Rowe, and Isaac Penfield, be a Committee to clear the highway by Isaac Holt's house, and others that needed."

"A highway, laid out by us, whose names are underwritten, meeting with a highway in Branford, laid out to East-Haven line, near Caleb Parmerly's land, 4 rods in breadth, running westerly, by said Parmerly's land, to a white-oak stump, and from thence to a dog-wood stump by said Parmerly's land, and from thence to a white-oak stump by said Parmerly's land, and from thence to a white-oak tree at the corner of Thomas Dawson's land, and from thence to a walnut pole in said Dawson's fence, and from thence to a white-oak stump near Samuel Russell's corner of his lot, and from thence to a white stump and stones, and from thence to a Walnut pole with stones, and from thence to a heap of stones, as are all the forementioned stations, meeting with the highway that leadeth from Joseph Tuttle's to the Pond Rock. March 24th, 1734.

ALLING BALL,  Com."

JOHN RUSSELL,

Proprietors confirmed the report.

"Beginning at the highway next to the Pond Rock and so running northward till it comes to or near the hill, northward of Caleb Chedsey's dwelling-house. Said highway is 3 rods wide, and is laid out to be 2 rods in width in Parmery's land, and one rod in width in Thomas Dawson's land till it comes to the River, and 1½ rods in Caleb Parmery's and Caleb Chedsey's land in the half mile, and 1¼ rods in Nathaniel Jocelin's land; to or near the valley northward of said Chedsey's house two rods wide in said Jocelin's land, and 1¼ rods in said Chedsey's land; and from thence turning a little eastward through a corner of said Chedsey's and Isaac Penfield's land 4 rods wide till it comes to the top of the hill, and then turneth westward thro' land of the heirs of George Pardee. Thence along said Dawson's land and Samuel Russel's on the west, and John Smith's on the east, until it comes to James' Run, so called, then 4 rods till it comes to Bull swamp bridge."

"Also, another highway beginning a little northward of said Chedsey's dwelling house, and so running thro' Foxon's as the road now runs, 2¾ rods wide, till it comes to Joseph Grannis' dwelling house; and from thence 4 rods to Piper's brook."

28th April 1732.—Laid out a highway from Samuel Bradley's lot, called Mount Harry, 4 rods from a white oak pole, west running south by the widow Chedsey's—thence south by Joseph Holt's lot 4 rods—thence by Jonathan Austin's, south, 4 rods west—thence southerly to John Rowe's south corner, 4 rods wide—east to a heap of stones and black oak pole, southerly to Daniel Russel's lot to a white oak stump, 4 rods to a black oak pole West, then running East by said Russel's lot 4 rods: south to a white oak pole, running east and south by Russel's lot to James Dennison's Northwest corner to a Walnut tree, continuing by said Denison's Southeast Corner, then running Southwesterly by said Denison's lot to his Southwest corner—then running west southwest by Joseph Holt, Joseph Tuttle, Samuel Hotchkiss, till it meets with the country road that leads to Muddy River, which road is 4 rods wide.

JOHN RUSSELL,
Proprietors’ meeting.—“It is proper that Samuel Russel should have a conveniency to go to his land near Bull swamp, and there being a piece of land which Capt. Theophilus Alling hath in his possession between said Russel’s land and the highway that is called Bull swamp road, which is common land; and we Joseph Holt, Thomas Alcock and John Thompson being appointed to lay out a highway across said common land from said road, to said Russel’s land, and in the most convenient place, and is bounded by heaps of stones by the road; the highway we laid out two rods wide, a heap of stones each side, and runs Southwesterly to said Russel’s land, containing two rods wide through, and is bounded by heaps of stones, each side said highway by Russel’s line, the bounds were appointed and settled, March, 1733.”

“13th Feb. 1734. A highway laid out near where Nathaniel Luddington lives, from said Luddington’s land 6 rods wide at the north end, running Southerly by land of Daniel Russel’s till it meets with the highway; and said highway to be 3 rods wide where it meets with the highway at the Southeast corner of said Daniel Russel’s land.”

[E. H. Record.]

“28th May, 1739. Joseph Holt and Thomas Alcock being called to lay out a highway, (being chosen thereto by the proprietors in East Haven,) of 4 rods wide, leading from East Haven up by the Bloomary, and running Northerly till it comes to a lot belonging to Samuel Bradley’s line on the north, and stakes and stones south, and extends 4 rods wide along by said Bradley’s line, till it comes to land belonging to John Moulthrop.—[E. H. Records.]

JOSEPH HOLT,
THOMAS ALCOCK,

We the Subscribers being appointed to lay out needful highways by the Proprietors of East-Haven, and within said Parish of East-Haven, and being called to lay out a highway from the country road by the west side of the fresh meadows within said Parish, and said highway extends along the said meadow as the path runs, till it comes to land in the improvement of Joseph Holt, and then turns up west by said Holt’s land, and runs round northward till it comes to Peter Woodward’s lot, called Sperry’s lot, and so by said lot till it comes to a highway that goes down to the country road that leads to the Ferry. And we began at the country road Southwest of said meadow, and the breadth of said highway is 4 rods wide, and the east side of said highway is bounded with heaps of stones, running with a line from a heap of stones between the parsonage land and the country road, to a stump and a heap of stones, and so continues below the hill 4 rods, till it comes over the brook or spring, and all the upland between the swamp and fence as it now stands, by Chedsey's land, and so between said Holt and Chedsey to the fence on the east side the said Highway, and so along between said Holt and Joseph Tuttle's land to the fence on each side, and so up between said J. Tuttle's land and Peter Woodward's to the fence, and each side, till it comes to the corner of said Woodward's lot, and then turns round to the highway, 4 rods. Laid out by us, 5th April, 1737.

"We the subscribers being appointed by the proprietors of East-Haven to lay out highways in East Haven, where it may be judged needful, we have, therefore, now laid out these highways upon the Green or Common in East-Haven, following, viz.: One road from the house of Gideon Potter, 10 rods wide, eastward, until it comes to the upper end of the New-Lane and Samuel Bradley's house lot. Another from that, Northward, 10 rods wide, until it comes to the country road. And another 10 rod road from the meeting-house, running about Southeast, until it comes to the head of the said New-Lane. And another road, 10 rods wide, from the house of Abraham Chedsey, Southward, down to the swamp of John Heminway: And another road from the said Chedsey's house, down to John Heminway's swamp, by John Heminway's and Moses Thompson's house lot, 10 rods wide. Also, another road from Moses Thompson's Barn eastward down to the Spring from Thompson's home lot to the swamp of John Heminway about 8 rods. [E. H. Record] “12th March, 1738. Voted, That the land between Stoney-River and Mill-River, on the south side of the Country road, between said Rivers and the Road, be and remain for the use of the proprietors forever, and not to be inclosed or taken up by any person under any pretence whatever."

[E. H. Records.]

Capt. Amos Morris bought the land, and at his own expense made a causey and road across the Cove Meadow, and by perseverance prevailed to get a road through the woods up to the old South-end road. This was an expensive enterprise, and is of great public utility. Yet when the Town assumed the road, they voted to allow him nothing for it. However, after much altercation, and the appointment of several Committees, the Town voted to allow him $40!! The road was then got through to Mew's Lane, in 1787. In 1792, another attempt was made to lay the road through up to the Meeting-house. And the report of the selectmen respecting it was accepted. But it was not executed until 1797, when the Town "Voted to open the road from the Meeting-House to Capt. Morris's Causey three rods wide."

"5th Jan. 1795. We laid out a highway through the Old plains; beginning at a Button Ball Tree about 24 rods south of the causey in the line of the Old highway; then running southeasterly thro' the lands belonging to the heirs of Jacob Smith dec'd, 53 rods and 19 links, in a straight line from said Button Tree to the Northeasterly corner of the stone wall lately belonging to James Thompson, dec'd. Said highway, as by the subscribers surveyed and laid out, 2½ rods in width north of the said Tree, and said corner of said stone wall, which makes the northerly line through the land of the said Smith's heirs, 54 rods and 24 links. Thence through the lands lately belonging to Stephen Thompson 19½ rods on the south line, which reaches said corner of said stone wall and 2½ in width, to metes and bounds northerly from said corner, which makes the northerly line through said land 23 rods, and 2 rods in length.

"We then began at the northwesterly corner of said new highway, and laid, in addition to the old highway that led from the said causey to Southend, one rod in width off from the lands belonging to said heirs, 24 rods in length, which reaches the meadow at the northeasterly end of said Causey. All which lands by said survey from the heirs of said Smith, is ½ of an acre and 38 rods. Damages for which were assessed at £18. [Stephen Thompson gave his land for the road.]

DAN HOLT,
JOHN WOODWARD,
Selectmen.”

[Ex. H. Record.]

This is the only road the Town owns on Southend Neck. The roads there were laid out by the Proprietors of the neck, according to agreement among themselves.

The road that leads to the New Ferry was surveyed 30th May, 1787, and £15 damage was awarded to Henry F. Hughes, with liberty to have his house remain where it stands, “so long as he shall improve it.” Nothing was awarded to the other men through whose land it was laid, either because they were specially benefited by it, or had in possession the old four rod highway that was laid out to the old Stable or Ferry Point, 1686.

The road was laid out by Amos Morris, jun. Dan Holt, Selectmen.

[Ex. H. Record.]

A road was laid out on the half mile at the north end of the Town as follows:

“Beginning at a brook near Ebenezer Holt’s house, and running easterly to Branford line, where it meets a highway this day laid out by the Selectmen of the Town of Branford, two rods wide; running through the land belonging to Eliphalet Rogers and others, to us unknown, 78½ rods, which makes 137 rods of land. Damages assessed at £10 19 6 lawful money. 10th June, 1796.

JAMES CHEDSEY,
ENOS HEMINWAY,
Selectmen.”

[Ex. H. Record.]

Road on Dragon Bank:

“Beginning at the highway that leads to the Old Ferry, called Pardee’s Ferry, and running northeasterly, on the west side of Samuel Tuttle’s Hill, through said Tuttle’s land 81 rods, and 3 rods in width, 1½ acres and 3 rods. Damages £4 6 8. Said road still runs said course through Henry F. Hughes’ land 27 rods and 9 links, 3 rods wide. Damages £0 12 0. Said road still runs said course from said Hughes’ land, through the Widow Mary Pardee’s land, 69 rods of land. Said road is still 3 rods wide, and leads into the highway a little westward and northward of said Mary Pardee’s house—still running with said highway.
northward, taking a small corner off from said Widow Pardee’s land in the pasture lying north of said house. Dam-ages £4 10 0. Then laid 22 rods of land for said highway through Jared Pardee’s land, which takes a small piece at the first mentioned place where said road left the Old Ferry highway, and a small piece of about two rods off from his land that lies north of where the Old barn stood. Dam-ages 12s. Said road still keeps its course from said Widow Pardee’s pasture lot, taking a small corner off from John Woodward’s land at the southwest corner. Then taking the Old highway running northward, taking a small piece of land from the northwest corner of Stephen Woodward’s land. No damage. AZARIAH BRADLEY, [Com.

“Whole cost, £43 9 8.”

“In Town meeting, 22d Sept. 1791, this report was accepted and approved.”

In 1824, the Selectmen agreed with Reuel Pardee and John Mitchel, for land for a two rod highway on the south side of their lots, being formerly called the Indian field. The road runs east and west, between the two roads that go to the Cove. For the land and fence, the Selectmen allowed Reuel Pardee sixty dollars, and John Mitchel thirty-six dollars.

The State road from North-Branford to Dragon Bridge, being now principally taken up for a Turnpike, is omitted.

AN ACCOUNT

OF THE

Names, Marriages, and Births,

OF THE

Families which first settled, or which have resided in East-Haven,

From its settlement in 1644, to the year 1800.
THE following account was collected from the public and family records, from tradition, and from the monuments of the dead. Of some, no dates could be found. The families are traced as far back as there are any authentic memorials of them. Those which have removed from the town, are also noticed, where records or other correct information respecting them came in the way of the compiler. They are arranged in alphabetical order. The name of each family is stated in large capitals: the branches or descendants of the original family, are designated by small capitals.

Note.—This mark [+] added to the names, signifies that the persons died young.

Heminway.

The name Heminway, in East-Haven, is Hemenway, and Hemmenway in Massachusetts. But in England it is Hemmingway, which is the original and real name. It was probably altered to make it shorter. English names of persons and places generally, have the consonant doubled at the end and beginning of a syllable in the middle of the Names of Marriages, and Births.

And is followed with a, as will appear from the following examples:

Cottingham; Collingham; Corringham; Coddington; Cossington; Deddington; Doddinghurst; Nottingham; Lullington; Hemmingburgh; Pennington; Warrington; Waddington; Collingwood; Harrington; Luddington; Birmingham; Watlingstreet; Darklington; Walsingham; Abingdon; Eckingham; Darkin; Epping; Wigginton; Odingsell; Edlinghall; Bevington. There is a feeble family tradition that John Smith was connected with the preceding family. If so, he must have been the oldest son of the first Thomas that lived, and was 49 years old when he married. This, however, is probable; but as it is somewhat doubtful, I have placed him after Thomas and Samuel, instead of before them, according to the order observed in respect to other families. Joseph, the son of Thomas, was a house Joiner, and his father requested the Town to grant him a certain lot upon which he might build his shop. This is the only notice I can find on record respecting him.

John, married Martha Tuttle, Feb. 5, 1718. PART III.

CONTAINING AN ACCOUNT OF THE DEATHS IN THE
FAMILIES NAMED IN THE SECOND PART.

THE present place of burial in East-Haven, was sequestered for that use in 1707. Previous to that time, some of the dead were buried on the west side of the Green; but they were generally carried to New-Haven. And previous to the year 1773, the catalogue is irregular and imperfect. It was collected, principally, from the records of East-Haven, New-Haven, and the monuments of the graves. From the year 1773, it is regular, and generally accurate.

APPENDIX II.

In the preface to this work, the Old and New Style is mentioned. But, as many of those persons who may possess it, are ignorant both of the origin and the reason of the alteration of the Style, they will, doubtless, be gratified with some information on that subject. The following extract from Adam's Roman Antiquities, contains the information desired on that point; and also concerning the origin of the names of the months, and days of the week, now in common use.

"Romulus, (the founder of the city and empire of Rome,) is said to have divided the year into ten months; the first of which was called March, from Mars, his supposed father; the second, April, either from the Greek name of Venus, or because then trees and flowers open their buds; the third, May, from Maia, the mother of Mercury; and the fourth, June, from the goddess Juno, or in honor of the young, and May of the old. The rest were named from their number, Quintilis, Sextilis, September, October, November, December. Quintilis was afterwards called Julius, from Julius Appendix.

Caesar; and Sextilia, Augustus, from Augustus Caesar; because in it he had first been made consul, and had obtained remarkable victories.

Numa added two months, called Januarius, from Janus; and Februarius, because then the people were purified by an expiatory sacrifice from the sins of the whole year; for this anciently was the last month in the year.

Numa, in imitation of the Greeks, divided the year into twelve months, according to the course of the moon, consisting in all of 354 days: he added one day more to make the number odd, which was thought more fortunate. But as ten days, five hours, and forty-nine minutes, were wanting to make the lunar year correspond to the course of the sun, he appointed that every other year an extraordinary month, called Intercalary month, should be inserted between the 23d and 24th day of February. The intercalating of this month was left to the discretion of the Pontiffs; who, by inserting more or fewer days, used to make the current year longer or shorter, as was most convenient for themselves or their friends. In consequence of this license, the months were transposed from their stated seasons; the winter months carried back into autumn, and the autumnal into summer.

Julius Caesar, when he became master of the state, resolved to put an end to this disorder, by abolishing the source of it, the use of Intercalations; and for that purpose, adjusted the year according to the course of the sun, and assigned to each month the number of days which they still contain. To make matters proceed regularly, from the first of the ensuing January, he inserted in the current year, besides the intercalary month of 23 days, which fell into it of course, two extraordinary months between November and December, the one of thirty-three, and the other of thirty-four days; so that this year, which was called the last year of confusion, consisted of fifteen months, or 445 days.

All this was effected by the care and skill of Soginies, a celebrated astronomer of Alexandria, whom Caesar brought to Rome for that purpose.

This is the famous Julian or solar year, which continues in use to this day in all Christian countries, without any other variation, than that of the old and new style, which was occasioned by a regulation of Pope Gregory, in the year 1582, who, observing that the vernal equinox, which at the time of the Council of Nice in 325, had been on the 21st March, then happened on the 10th, by the advice of astronomers, caused 10 days to be entirely sunk and thrown out of the current year, between the 4th and 15th October: and to make the civil year for the future to agree with the real one, or with the annual revolution of the earth, which is completed in 365 days, 5 hours, 49 minutes; he ordained, that every 100th year should not be leap year, excepting the 4000th, so that the difference will hardly amount to a day in 7000 years, or according to a more accurate computation of the length of the year, to a day in 5200 years.
Appendix.

This alteration of the style was immediately adopted in all the Roman Catholic countries; but not in Britain till the year 1752, when eleven days were dropped between the 2d and 14th of September, so that that month contained only 19 days; and thenceforth the new style was adopted as it had been before in the other countries of Europe. The same year, also, another alteration was made in England, that the legal year, which before had begun on the 25th March, should begin upon the 1st January, which took place 1st January, 1752.

The custom of dividing time into weeks among the Romans, as we do in imitation of the Jews, was introduced in the time of the Emperors. Dio, who flourished under Severus, says, it first took place a little before his time, being derived from the Egyptians, and universally prevailed.—The days of the week were named from the planets, as they still are—Dies Solis, Sunday; Luna, Monday; Martis, Tuesday; Mercurii, Wednesday; Jovis, Thursday; Ven-eris, Friday; Saturni, Saturday."

Mr. Webster, in his letters to a young gentleman, observes respecting the origin of the names of the days of the week now in common use, that our ancestors worshipped many deities, or deified heroes, as Woden, or Odin, under whose guidance they migrated into Europe; Thor, the thunderer, or god of thunder; Friga, who answered to Venus of the Romans; and from their several deities we received the names of the days of the week. Sunday, Sun’s-day; Monday, Moon’s-day; Tuesday, Teut’s-day, or Tisday; Wednesday, Woden’s-day; Thursday, Thor’s-day; Friday, Friga’s-day; and Saturday, Satur’s-day. Thus the ancient heathen gods are still honored by a weekly and regular rotation of their names, fifty-two times in a year.

CONFESSION OF FAITH.

ARTICLE 1. We believe in one only living and true God, the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost, who is a spirit, infinite, eternal and unchangeable, in his being power, knowledge, presence, wisdom, holiness, justice, goodness and truth, that it is the duty of all his intelligent creatures to worship him in spirit and in truth; that he created all things, that he preserves and governs all his creatures, and overrules all their actions for his own glory, and that in whatsoever comes to pass, he is accomplishing his eternal purposes, according to the counsel of his own will, in such a way that man is a free agent, and accountable for all his actions.

2. We believe, that God created man upright; that our first parents freely sinned and fell, and that all mankind, in a state of nature, and before regeneration by the spirit of God, are dead in trespasses and sins, and without any holiness and true love to God, and are justly exposed to all the miseries of this life, and the pains of hell forever.

3. We believe, that God in his mercy has not left all mankind to perish forever; but out of his mere good pleasure, has from all eternity elected some to everlasting life; and that he has covenanted to deliver them from sin and misery, and to bring them into a state of salvation by a Redeemer.

4. We believe, that the only Redeemer of God's elect is the Lord Jesus Christ, who is very God and very man, that taking upon him our nature, he suffered and died on the cross; then he arose from the dead, and ascended into heaven, where he ever liveth to make intercession for us; that he alone has made an atonement for sin; and that, without a special-interest in this atonement, there is no salvation.

5. We believe, that without a change of heart, wrought in the unregenerate, by the special agency of the Holy Spirit, who is very God, no one can be an heir of eternal life; and that the soul, which is once made a partaker of renewing and saving grace, will never be permitted so to fall away as finally to perish.
6. We believe, that adoption, repentance, justification, sanctification and perseverance, are not bestowed as the reward of any merit, in him who receives them; but all flow from the free and sovereign gift and grace of God.

7. We believe, that there will be a general resurrection, of the righteous and the wicked; and a general judgment, at which, all the righteous shall be admitted to everlasting happiness, and all the wicked sentenced to misery without end.

8. We believe, that the Lord's Supper and Baptism, are sacraments of the New Testament; and that baptism is to be administered to unbaptized adults, who profess their faith in Christ, and to the infant children of any, who are members of the Church.

9. We believe, that the scriptures, of the Old and New Testament, are given by inspiration of God, and are the sufficient and only rule of faith and practice.

Thus in the presence of Almighty God, you solemnly profess and believe.

COVENANT.

You do now, in the awful presence of the dread majesty of heaven and earth, before Angels and Men, with seriousness, and as you hope, in sincerity of soul, avouch the Lord Jehovah to be your sovereign Lord, and supreme good through Jesus Christ. And solemnly devote and give up yourself, by divine grace assisting you, in the most sacred ties, to observe all God's commandments, seeking his glory and walk in Christian fellowship, and in the performance of Christian duties, in all the ordinances of Christ to be enjoyed in his Church; and in this particular Church, so long as God in his providence shall continue you a member of it.

Thus in the presence of God, through grace assisting, you solemnly covenant and promise.

Then doth this Church also accept of you. And I declare you, a member of, and in full communion with, the Church of Christ. And this Church doth likewise promise, that in the strength of divine grace, we will walk towards you in all christian watchfulness and love.
CONSTITUTION.

The Church and Society of East Haven, having given Mr. Nicholas Street, a call, to settle with them as a Pastor, in the work of the Gospel ministry among them, and he accepting the call; the Church called a meeting of the brethren to discourse of Church Government, and of the manner in which they propose to be governed, which was held in East Haven, Sept. 3, 1755. And at said meeting, it was voted and agreed to, that Saybrook Platform, should be the constitution, by which they and their Pastor, would be governed, with this understanding it in the following respects.

Viz. 1. That no person be admitted a member of this Church, without the vote and consent of the major part of the brotherhood. 2. That no person be censured without the vote and consent of the major part of the brotherhood.

This voted in the affirmative, and signed by the Church's Committee, with the concurrence of Mr. Nicholas Street, called to be Pastor of said Church and people.

THOMAS SMITH,
Deodate Davenport,
Daniel Hitchcock,

Nicolauss Street.

Dec. 4, 1755. The Church voted that the Lord's Supper be administered once in two months; and that the fragments of the bread and wine be presented to the Minister after the Sacrament as his perquisites.

ARTICLES OF PRACTICE ADOPTED MARCH 2, 1832.

1. Every person coming from a Church, not in Communion with this Church, in case of admission, shall be propounded and admitted in the usual way. And every person coming from other Churches, in order to be admitted as a member of this Church, must furnish such evidence of good character and good standing in the Church to which he belonged, as shall be satisfactory to this Church.

2. Members of sister Churches in good standing may be admitted to occasional communion with this Church, one year. But after that term, they must produce a letter of dismission from the Church, to which they belong with a view to unite with this Church, in order to a continued enjoyment of Church privileges.

3. In all cases of private offences, the rule as given in the 18th Chap. of Matthew, 15, 16, 17, verses is to be observed.

4. In cases of public and notorious offences, against the laws of religion and morality, the Church as a body may call the offender to an account, by a Committee appointed for that purpose, who shall report to the Church.

STANDING COMMITTEE.

There shall be a standing Committee of this Church, consisting of four or more members, as the church may judge proper, who with the pastor shall have the powers, and perform the duties, as follows, viz.

1. It shall be the duty of this committee to enquire after all public offences in this church, which may come to their knowledge by complaint or otherwise.

2. It shall be the duty of this committee to ascertain the facts in each case that may come before them, and to make reports to the church, both of the facts and the measures proper in their opinion, to be taken in their case.

3. This committee shall have power to summon before them all members of the church, accused of any offence, to examine them, and to give them such brotherly counsel, as may, in their judgment, tend to reclaim offenders.

4. This committee shall have power to call upon any of the brethren of the church, to aid them in the discharge of any of their duties.

But this church declares, that in appointing this committee, they do not discharge or lessen the obligations of individual members of this church, to watch over, admonish and reprove one another.

This Church was gathered and organized Oct. 8, 1711.
